DECORATIVE FABRICS AND WALLPAPERS

DESIGNED BY

FRANK LLOYD
WRIGHT

MAURICE ROBERT DES MARAIS

"Decoration is intended to make use more charming and comfort more appropriate or else a privilege has been abused."

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT

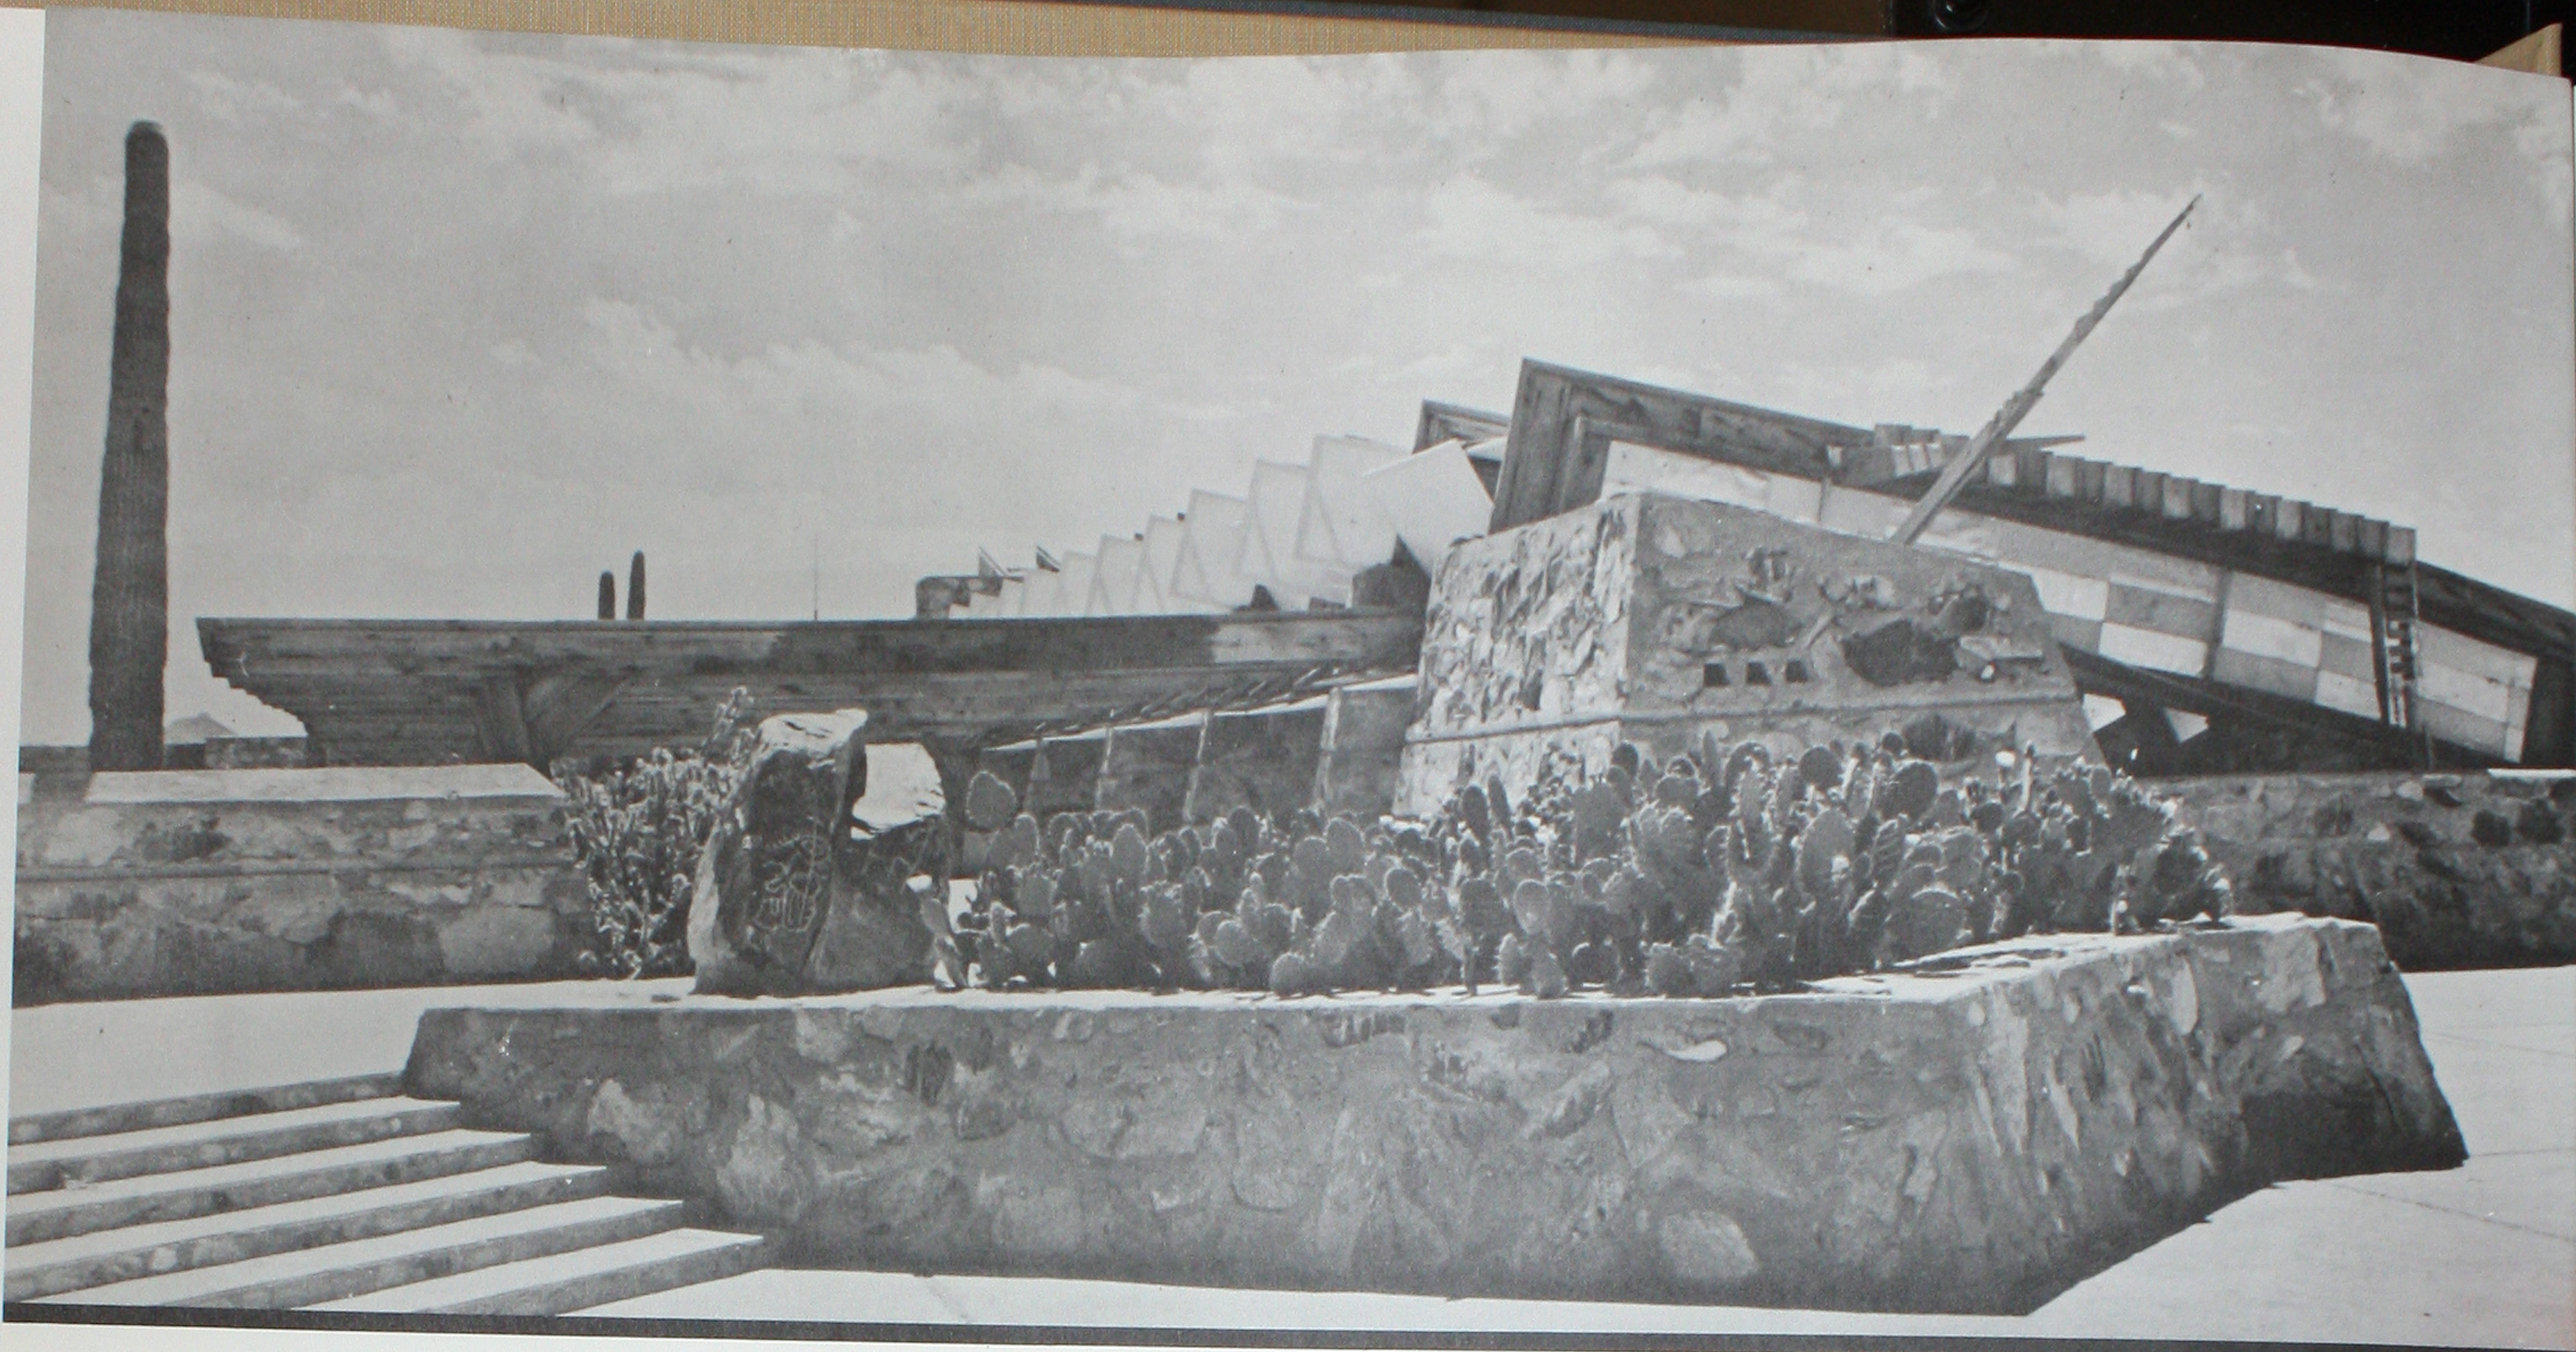

When internationally famous FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT turns his attention to the designing of decorative fabrics and wallpapers, it is time for rejoicing.

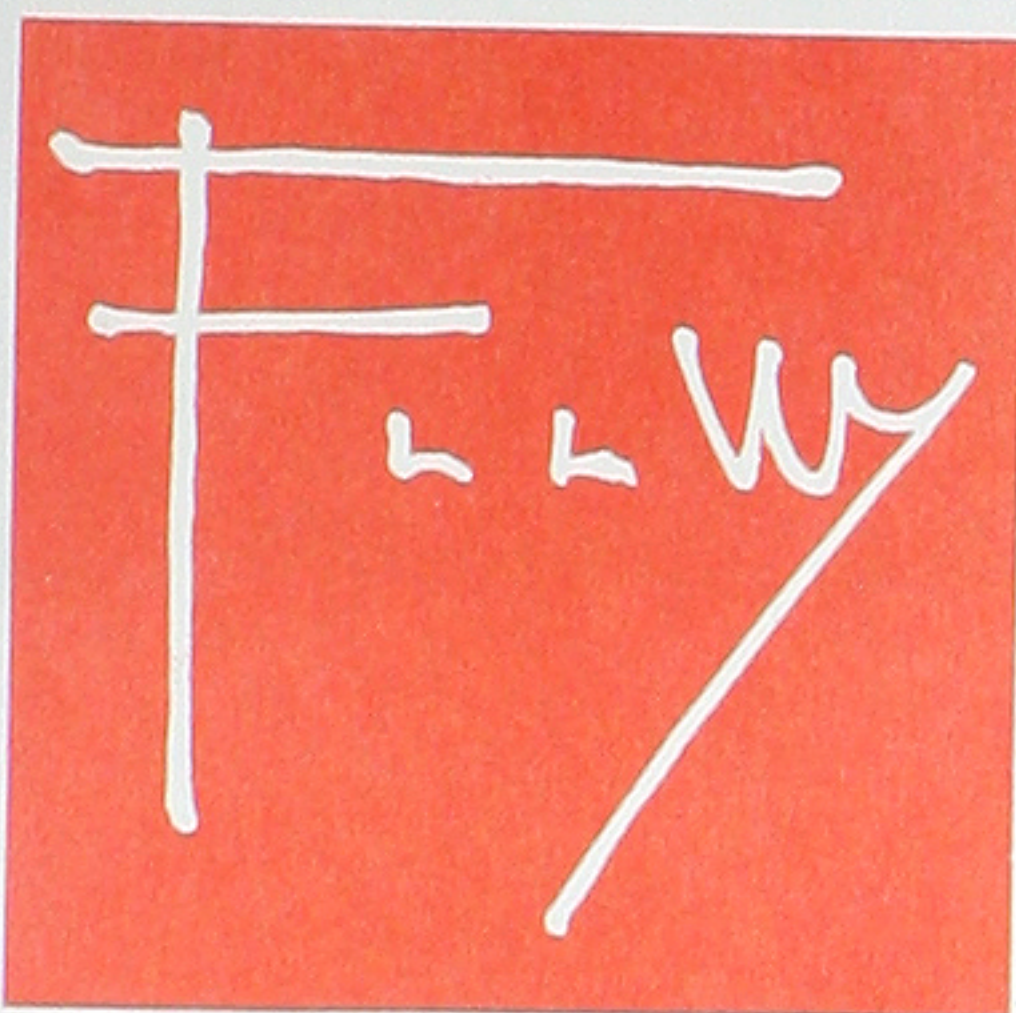

For more than half a century he has been the prophet of a new concept in architectural design. This concept has spread throughout the world . . . and its liberating influence and dramatic appeal now appears . . . or adaptations of it appear . . . in practically every structure being built today.

Mr. Wright's genius for combining form, function and color, is clearly reflected in this "TALIESIN" Line . . . a unique and breathtakingly beautiful collection of fabrics and wallpapers that will add new charm and distinction to the American home, be it provincial, traditional or contemporary in flavor.

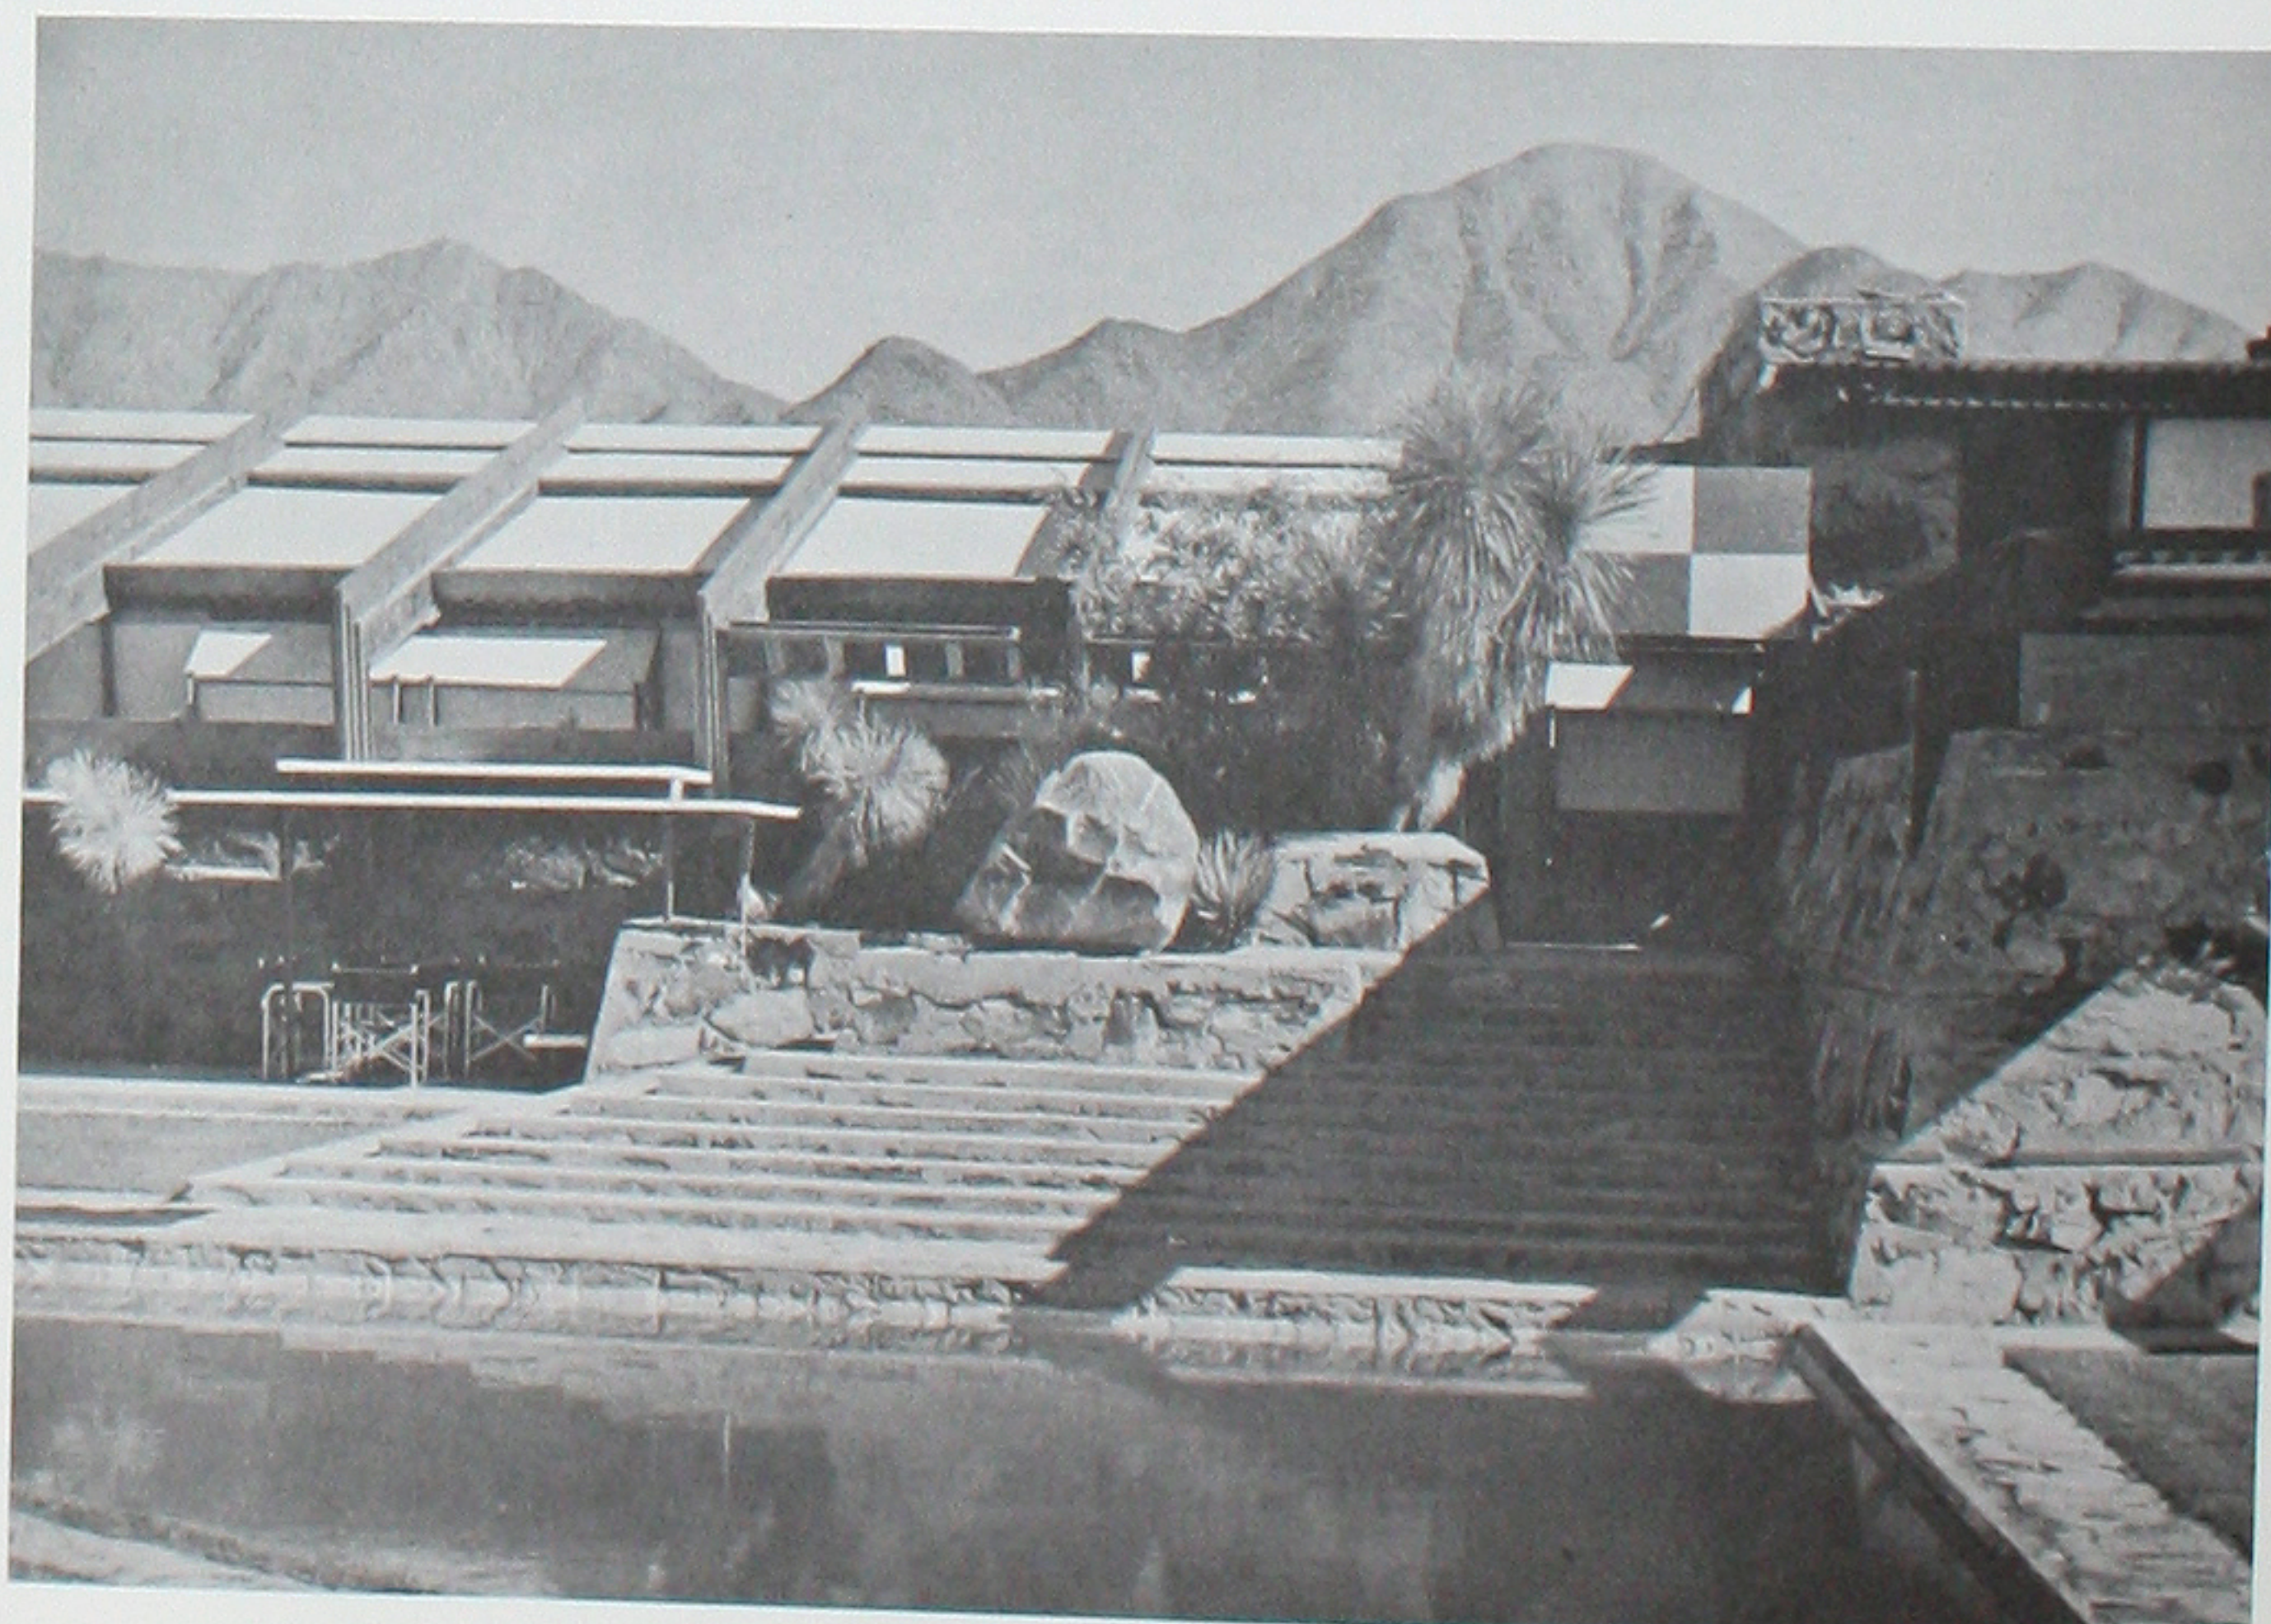

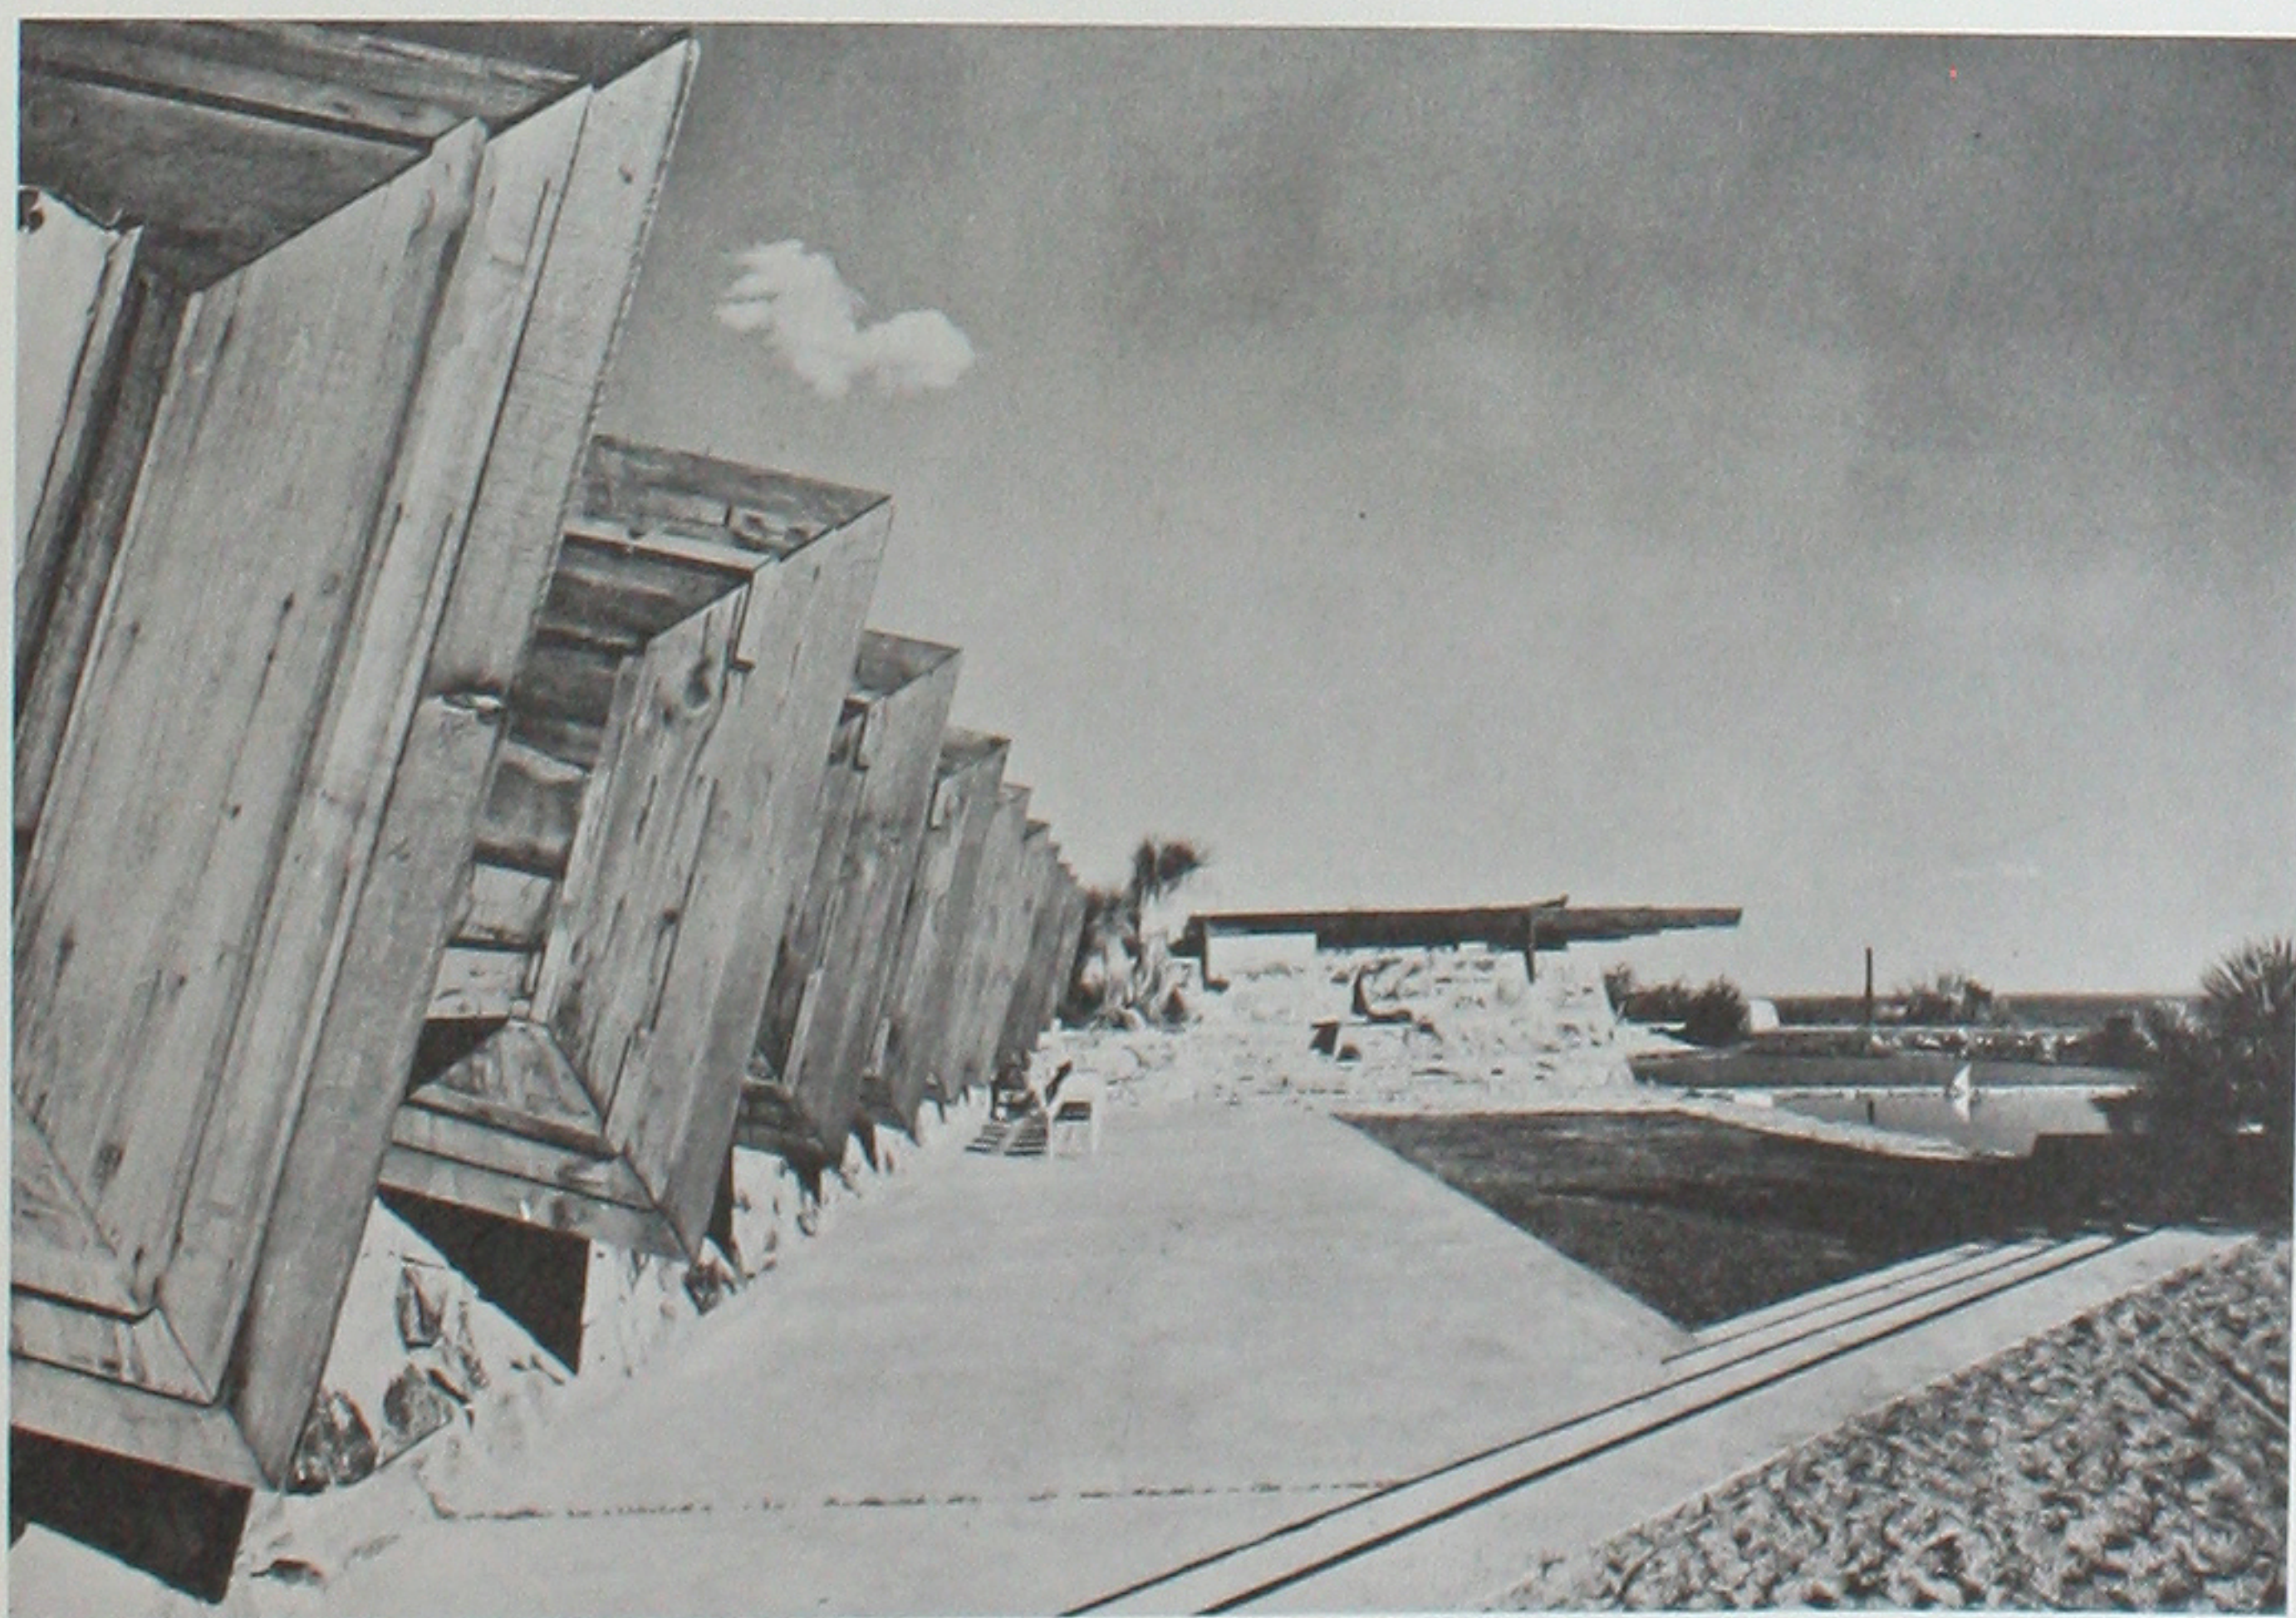

TALIESIN WEST, Paradise Valley, near Phoenix, Arizona

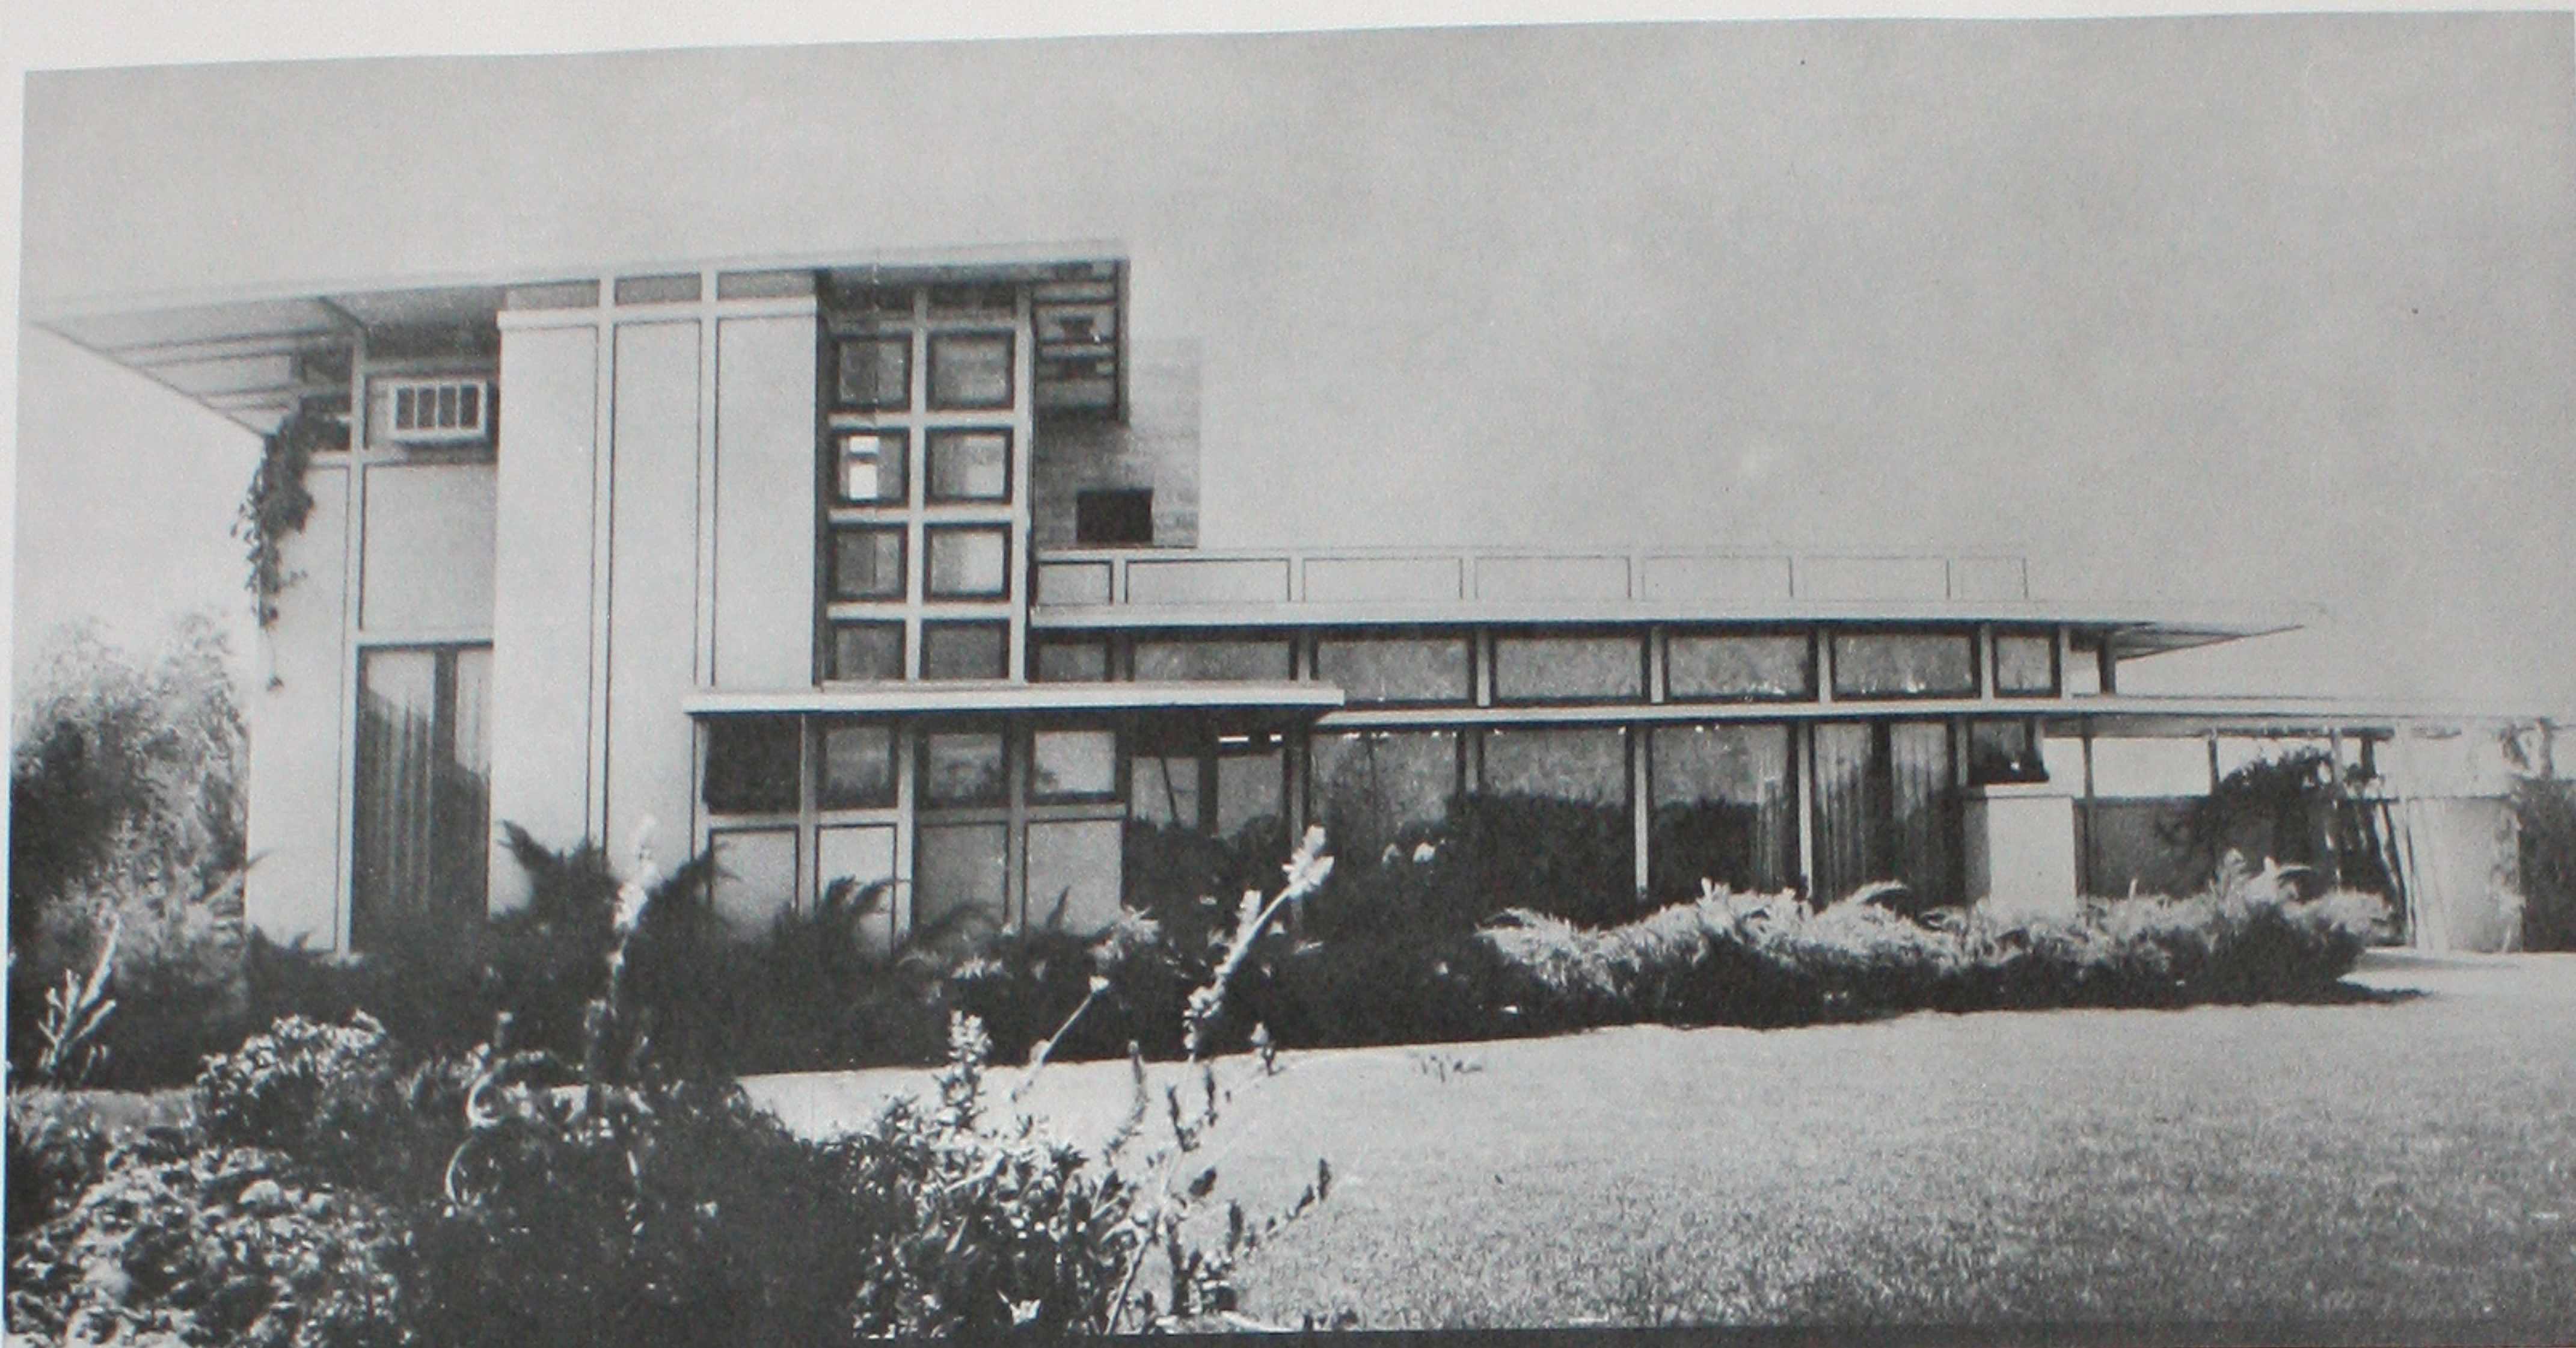

TALIESIN WEST, the home of Frank Lloyd Wright, has been an object lesson in construction and design to the apprentices who under the Taliesin Fellowship, come to live, study and work here with Mr. Wright.

It is a heavy masonry massed structure topped with redwood timbering upon which canvas has been stretched to make a unique textile overhead. The pleasantest lighting imaginable is the result.

Organically, Taliesin is the perfect home for the terrain in which it is set. The word is derived from the Welsh, meaning "shining brow," and is so called because it is actually built around the brow of the hill.

The Raymond Carlson Home, Phoenix, Arizona

An excellent architectural example of the brilliant use of concrete and glass. Here is beauty and strength with full advantage taken of the terrain, permitting maximum lighting and airiness, at the same time providing a panoramic view of the scenic outdoors.

"FALLING WATER" The Edgar J. Kaufman Home

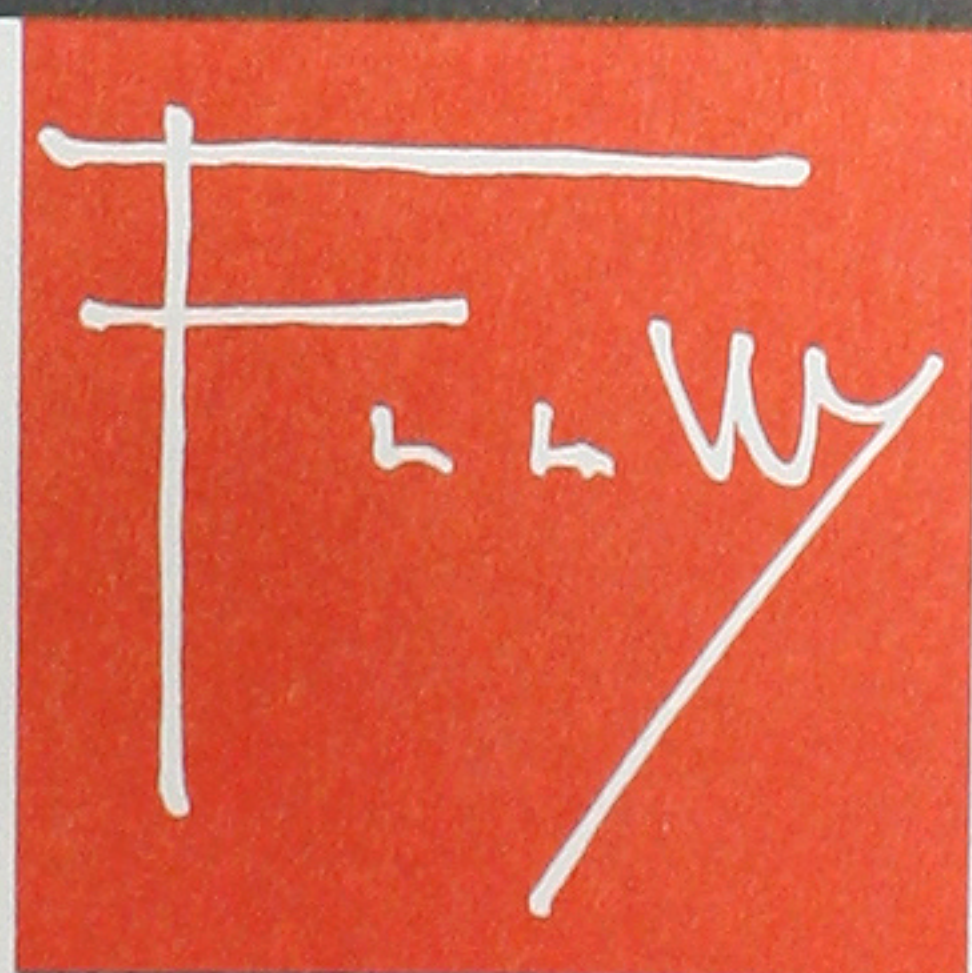

This magnificent dwelling, constructed in 1935, is reputed to be the first home to be built of reinforced concrete. Note how masterfully FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT planned the construction to organically blend with the superb natural setting.

Schumacher's "Taliesin" Suite,
Located in the National Republican Club, New York City

This newly remodeled suite, in one of New York City's most historic landmarks, dramatically illustrates the beauty, function, and versatility of the fabrics and wallpapers in this TALIESIN line. The unusual designs, colorations and textures are as adaptable to traditional decors as they are to contemporary.

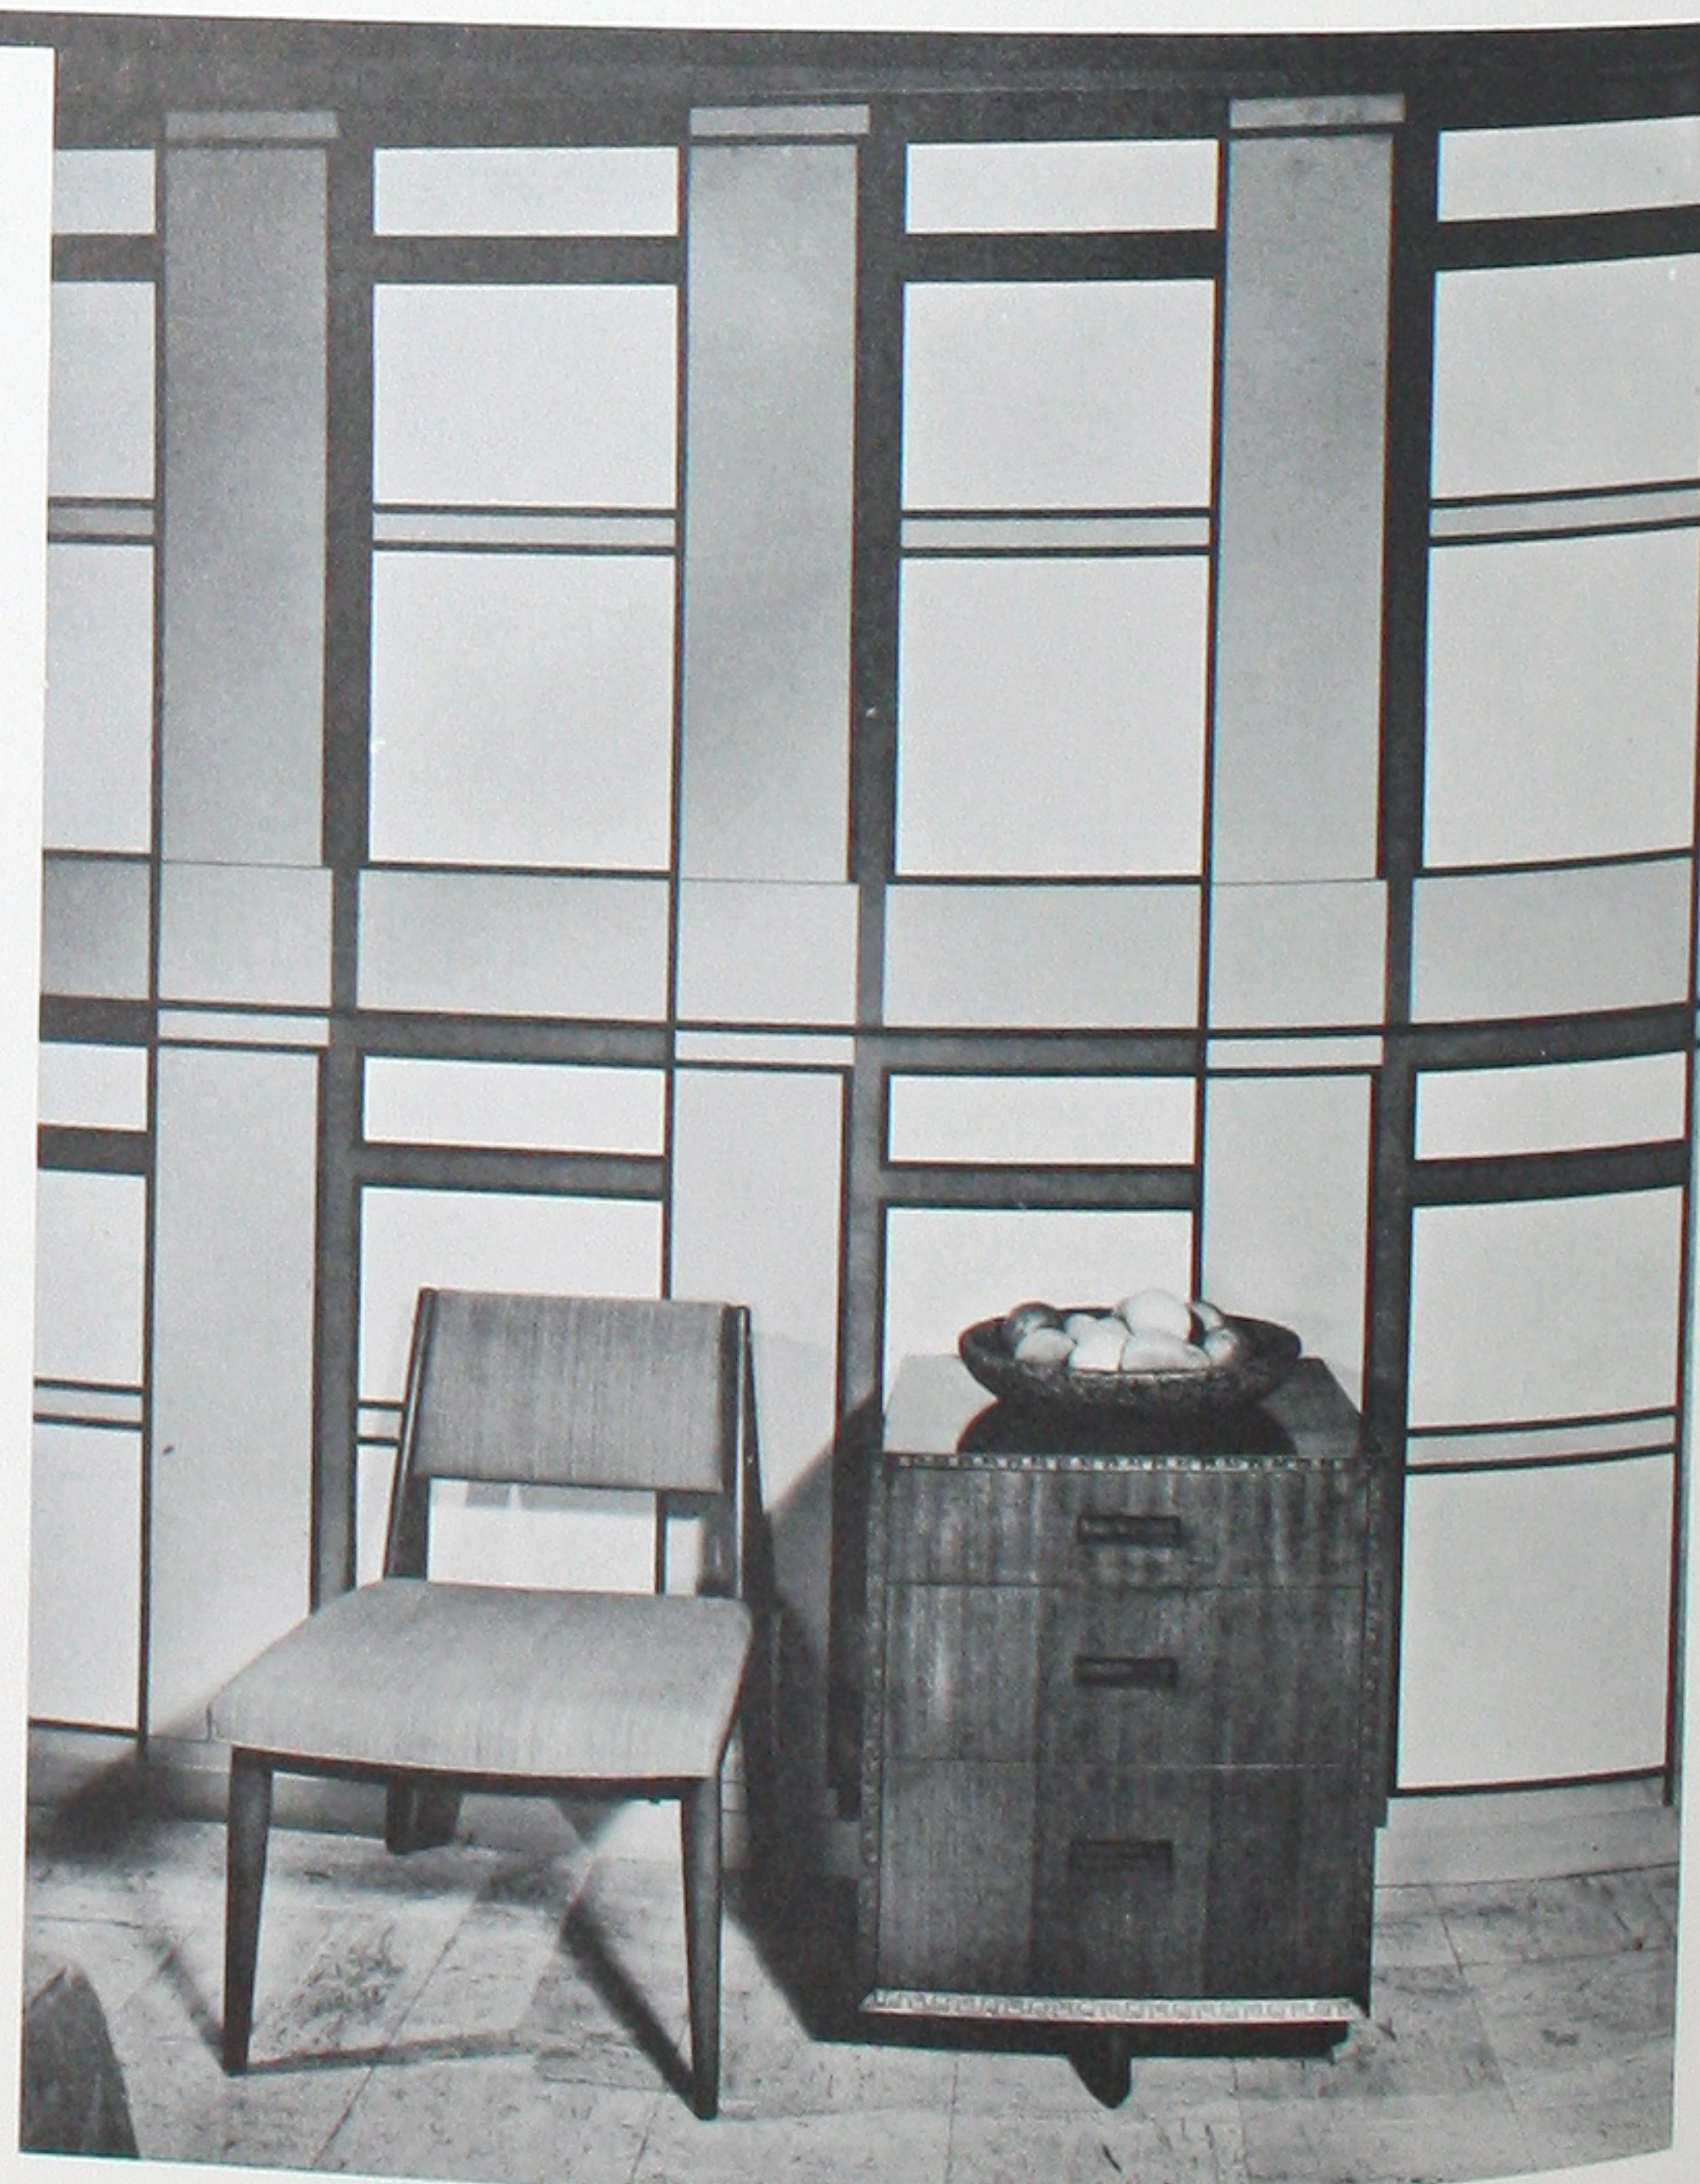

The livingroom-bedroom features draperies of fabric Design No. 103, used with Design No. 503 casement fabric. Design No. 506 is the upholstery fabric for the sofa bed.

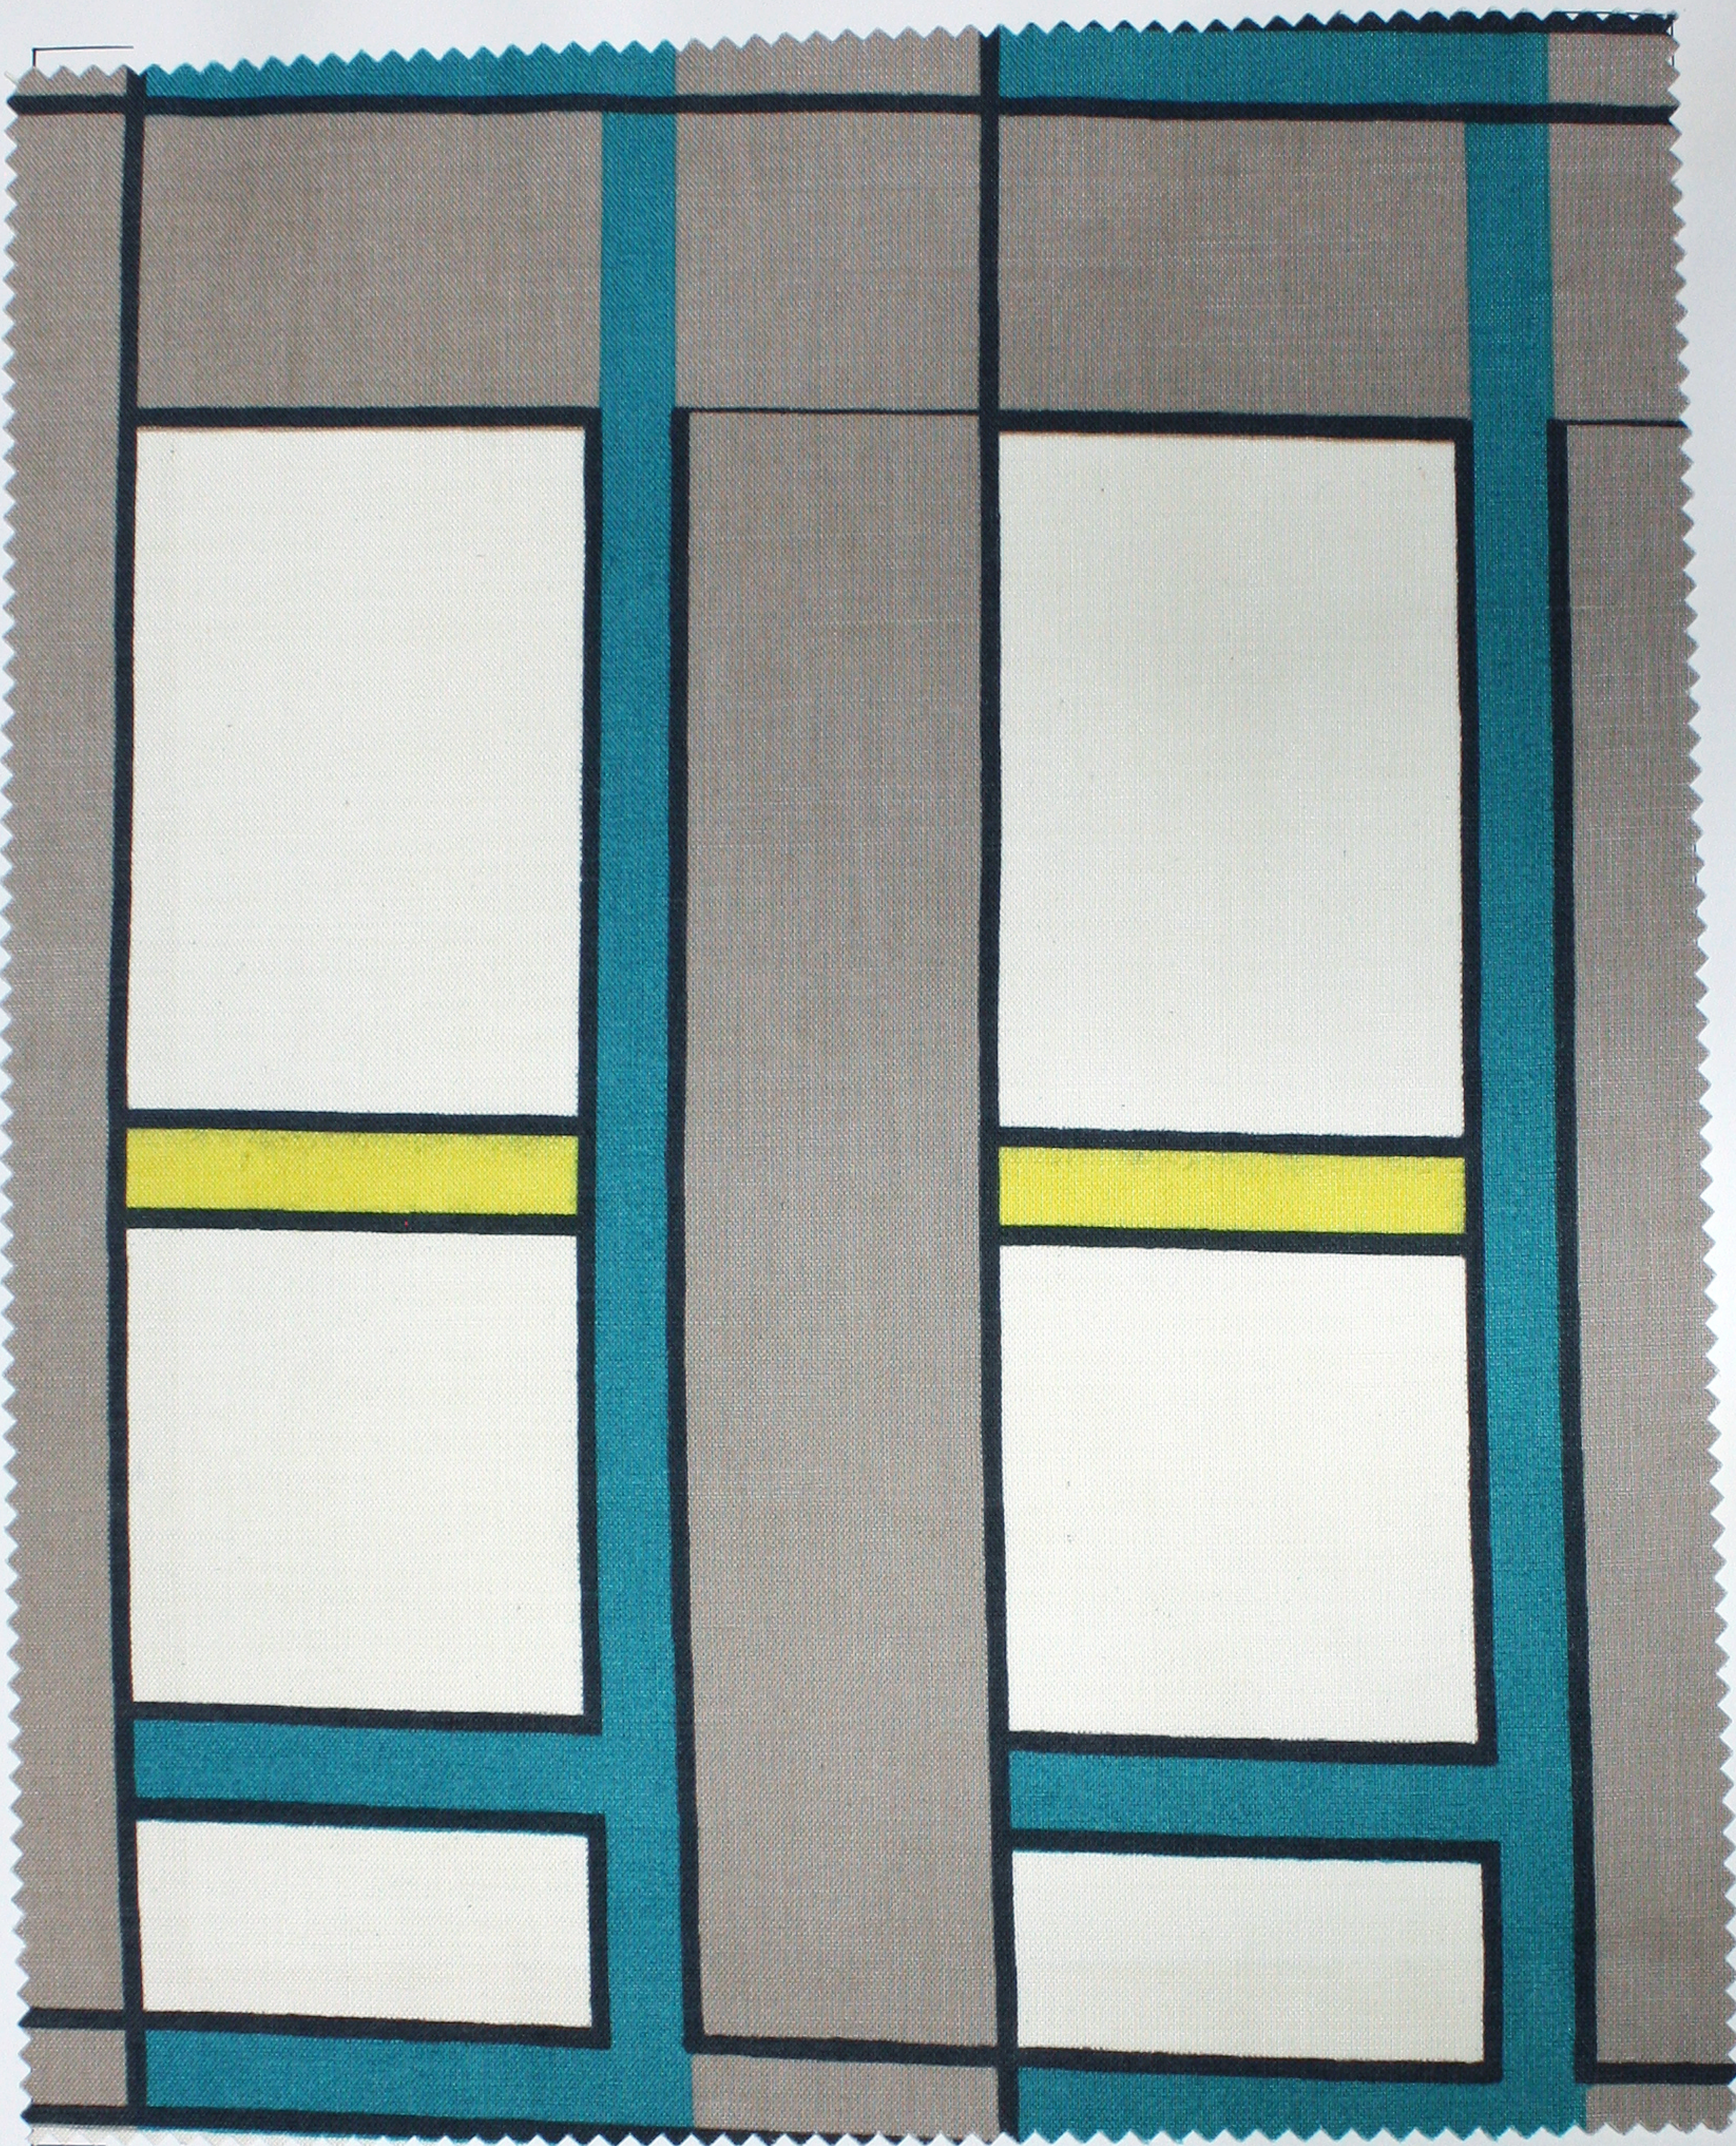

Wallpaper Design No. 103, matching the draperies, is used on a single wall in this same livingroom-bedroom.

Other rooms in Schumacher's "Taliesin" suite are illustrated elsewhere in this portfolio.

Florida Southern College, planned in 1936, is probably the one entirely modern campus among our educational institutions. The overall plan is Floridian in character consisting of deeply shaded winding esplanades. The unusual brickwork on the facade of several of the college buildings is suggested in Design No. 504.

A Windmill, Freeport, Illinois

Even the most humble structure . . . in this case a windmill . . . takes on magnificent beauty when Frank Lloyd Wright gives it his masterful designing touch.

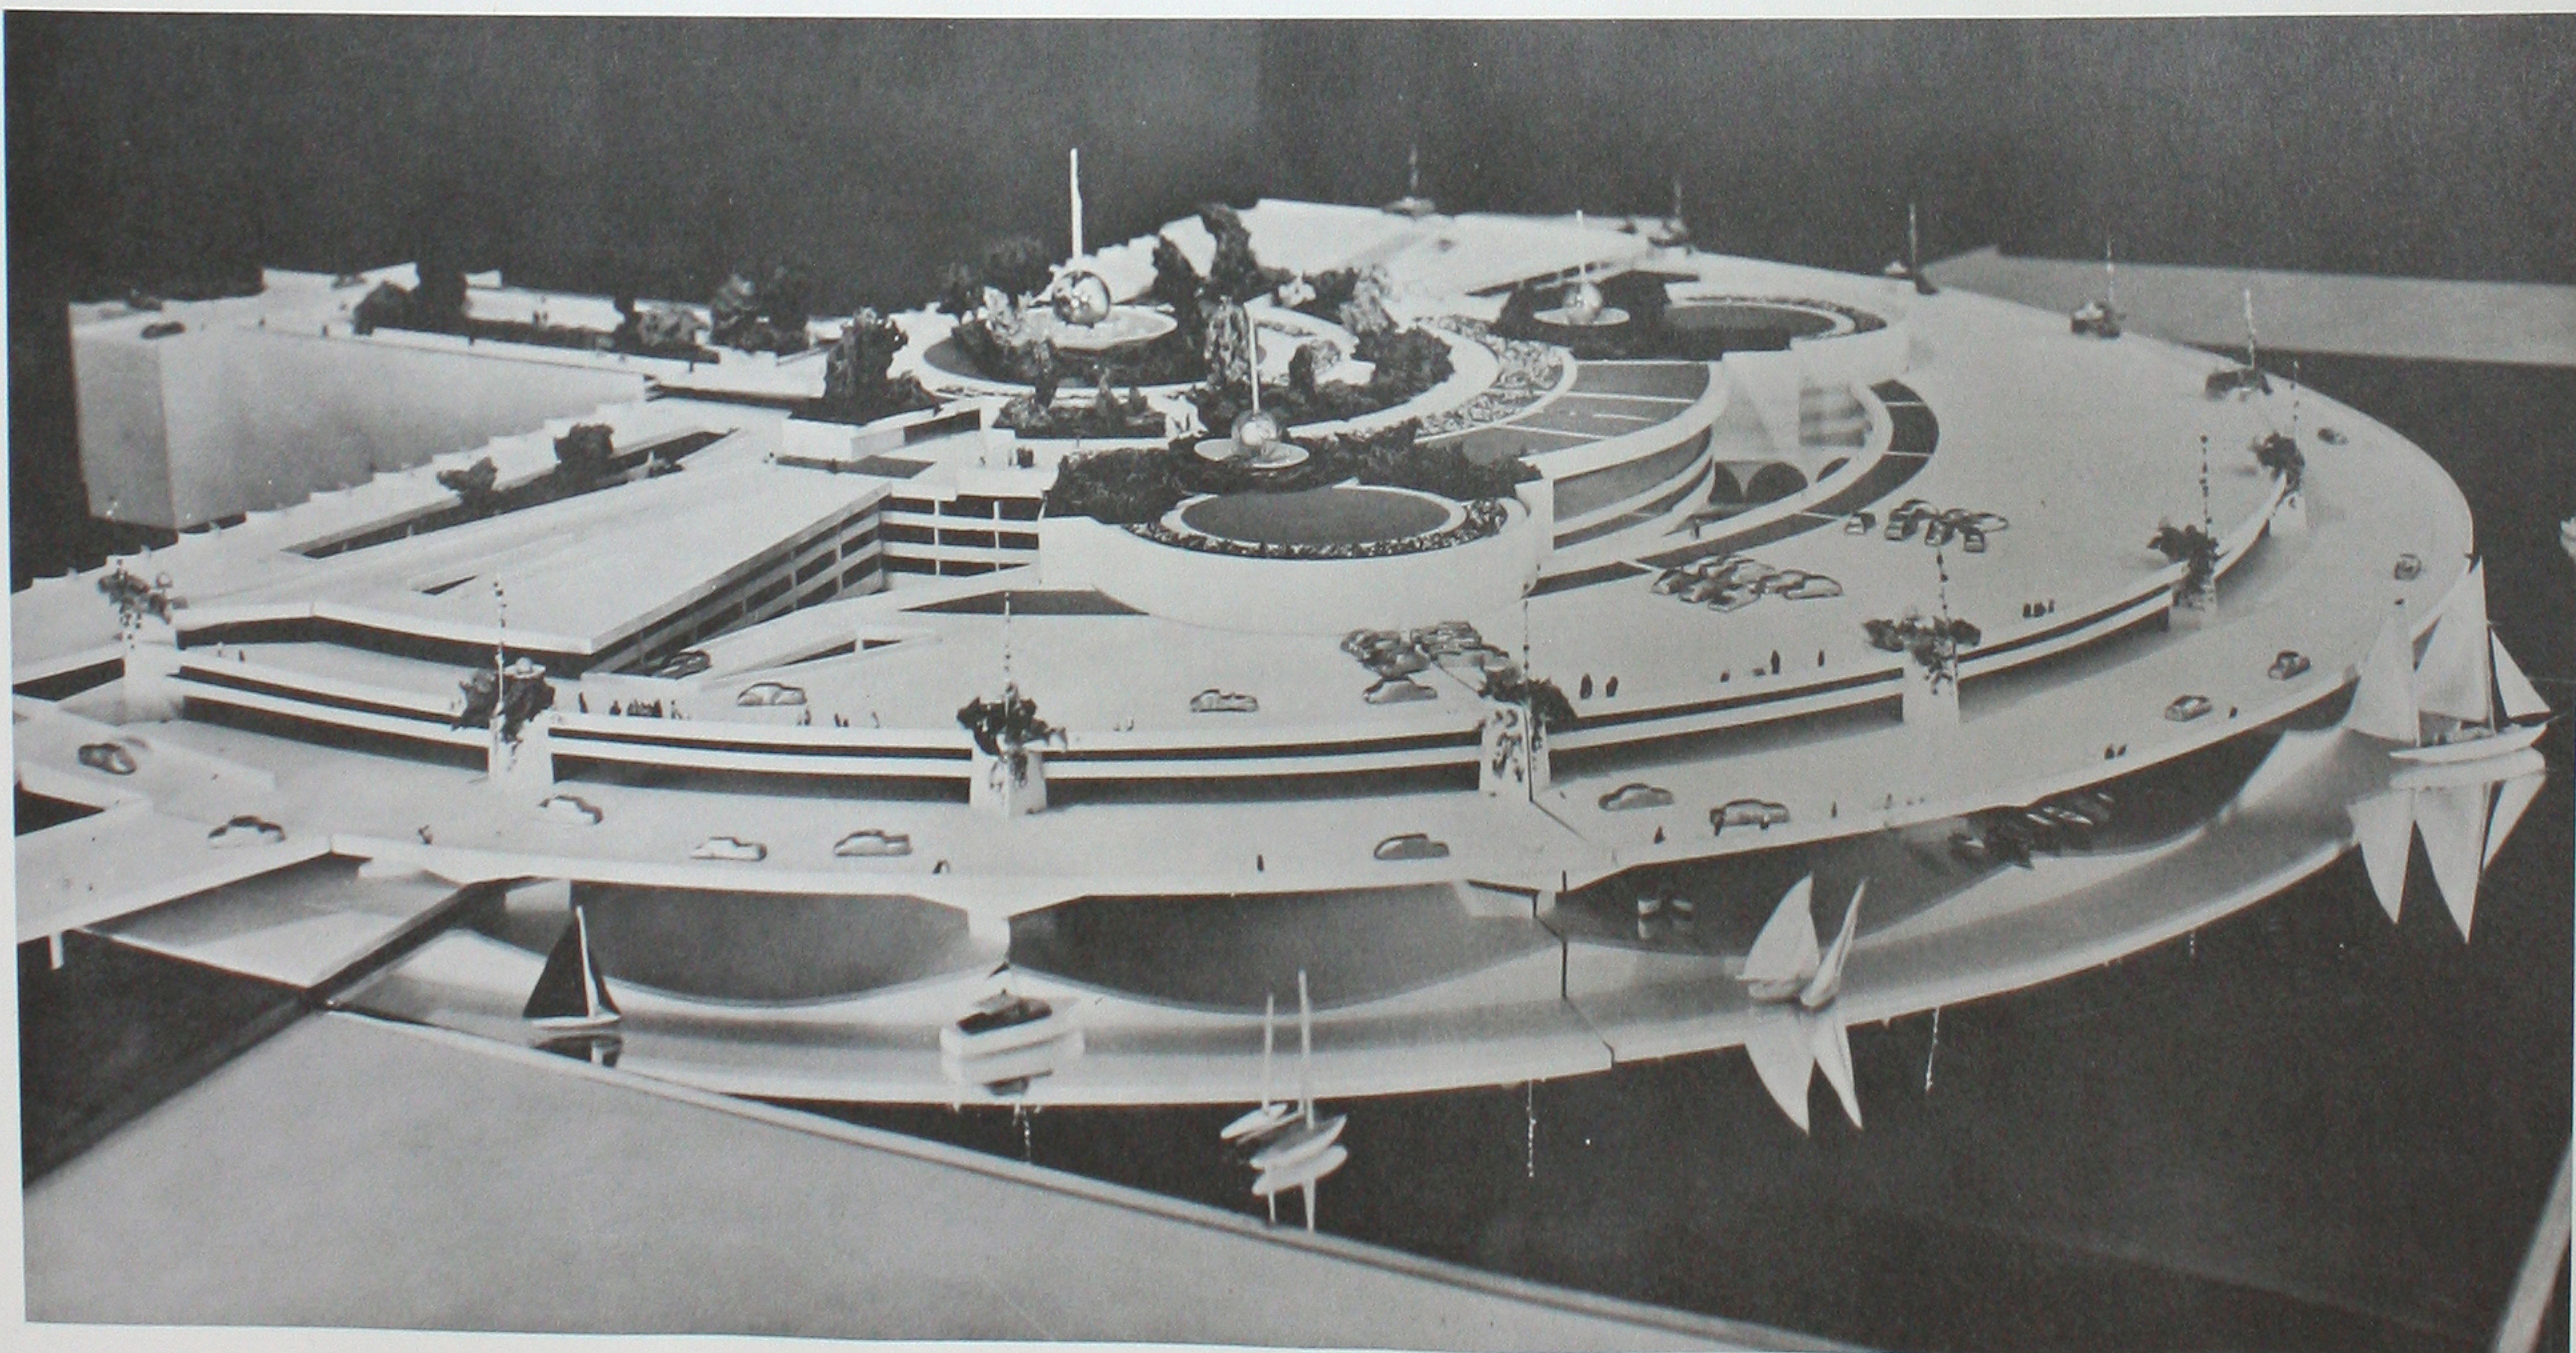

FLW

Imperial Hotel, Tokyo, Japan

This imposing structure, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, was built in 1913 for the Royal household of Japan and visiting dignitaries. From eating and sleeping on the floor the occupants changed to the western custom of sitting at tables and climbing into beds. "I desired to help Japan make the transition from wood to masonry and from her knees to her feet, without too great loss of her own great accomplishments in culture" as Mr. Wright explained it. A tribute to the strength of this structure is the fact that it was one of the few edifices to remain unharmed by the disastrous Japanese earthquake in 1923.

Proposed Civic Center, Madison, Wisconsin

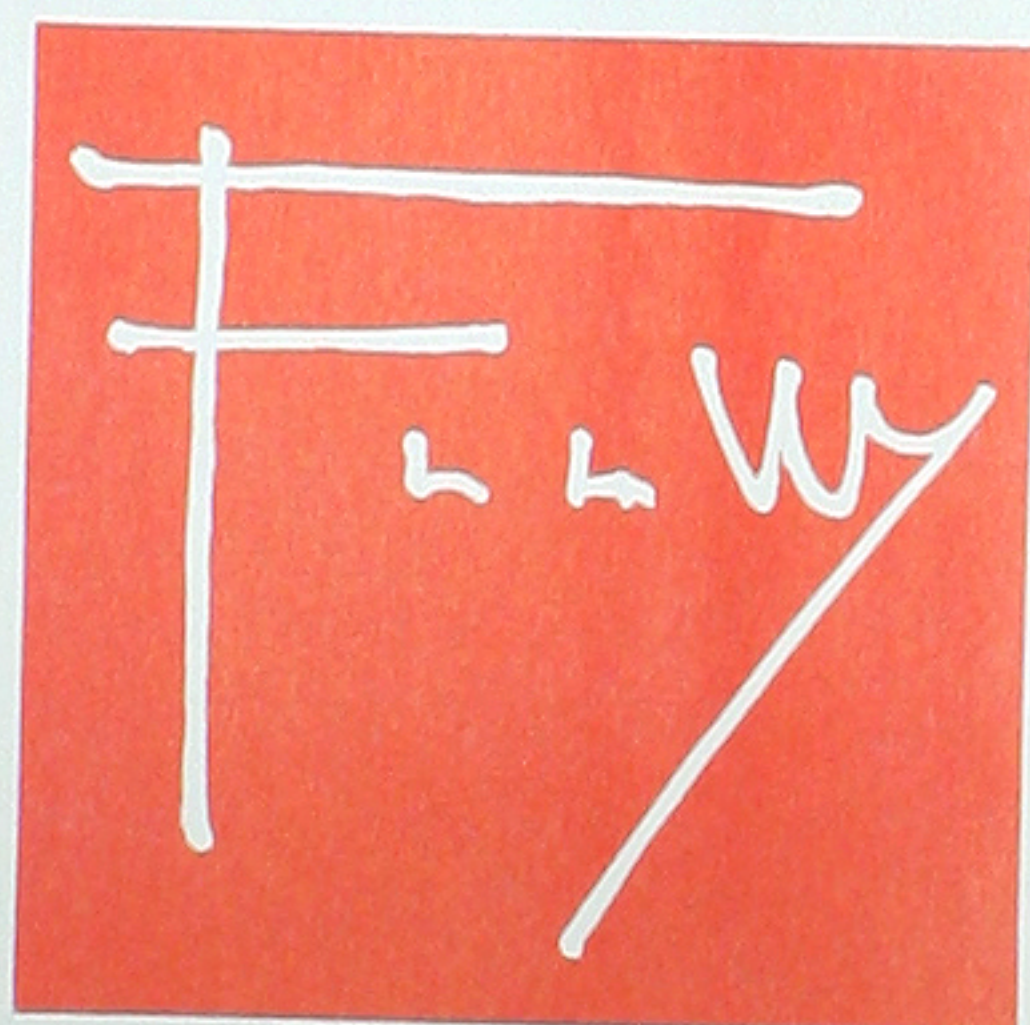

Words are superfluous in describing this incredibly beautiful and functional center of civic activity, which is accessible by land, sea and air.

"A home for our people in the spirit in which our Democracy was conceived... the individual integrate and free in an environment of his own, appropriate to his circumstances...a life as beautiful as he can make it...with her, of course."

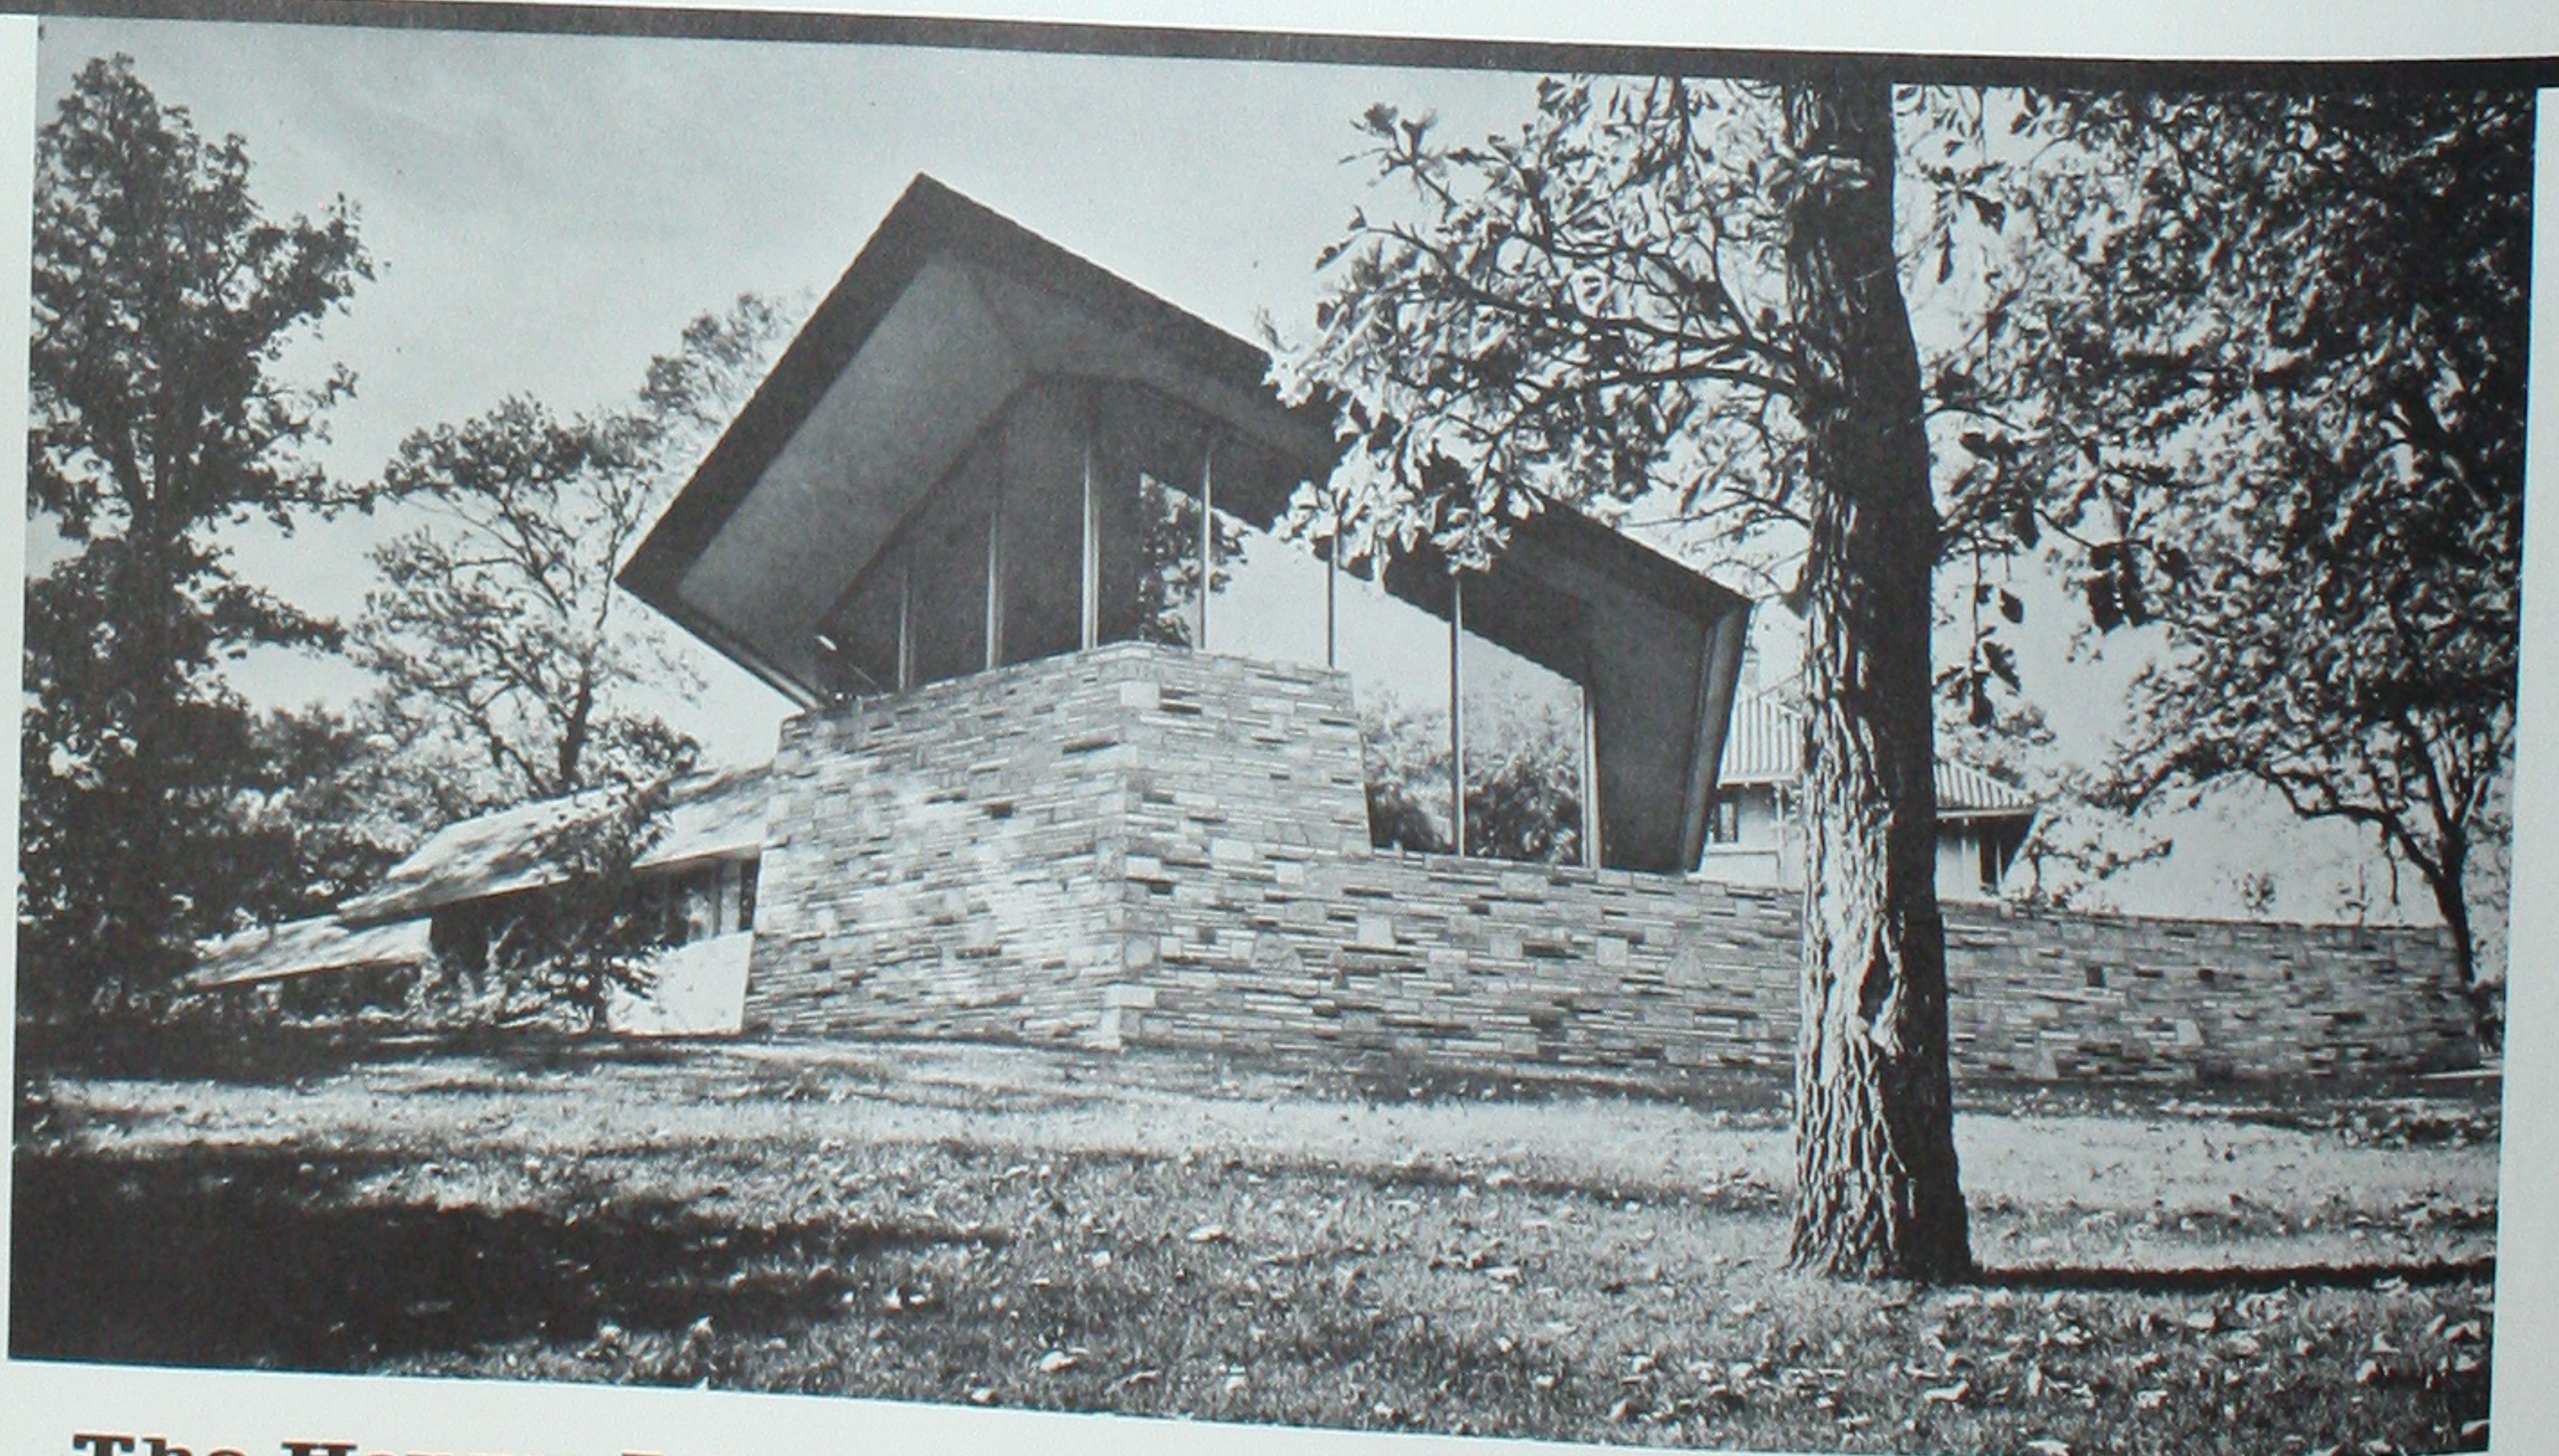

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT

The Adelman House, Phoenix, Arizona

For sixty years Mr. Wright has been enriching the lives of a vast number of people with his modest cost homes... each individually designed. Probably one of his greatest contributions in this field is his world famous "Usonian" houses, a simplified method of construction so devised that the owners themselves can build it with economy and exceptional beauty. The Adelman house is a fine example of his "Usonian" construction.

The Bedroom of Schumacher's "TALIESIN" Suite

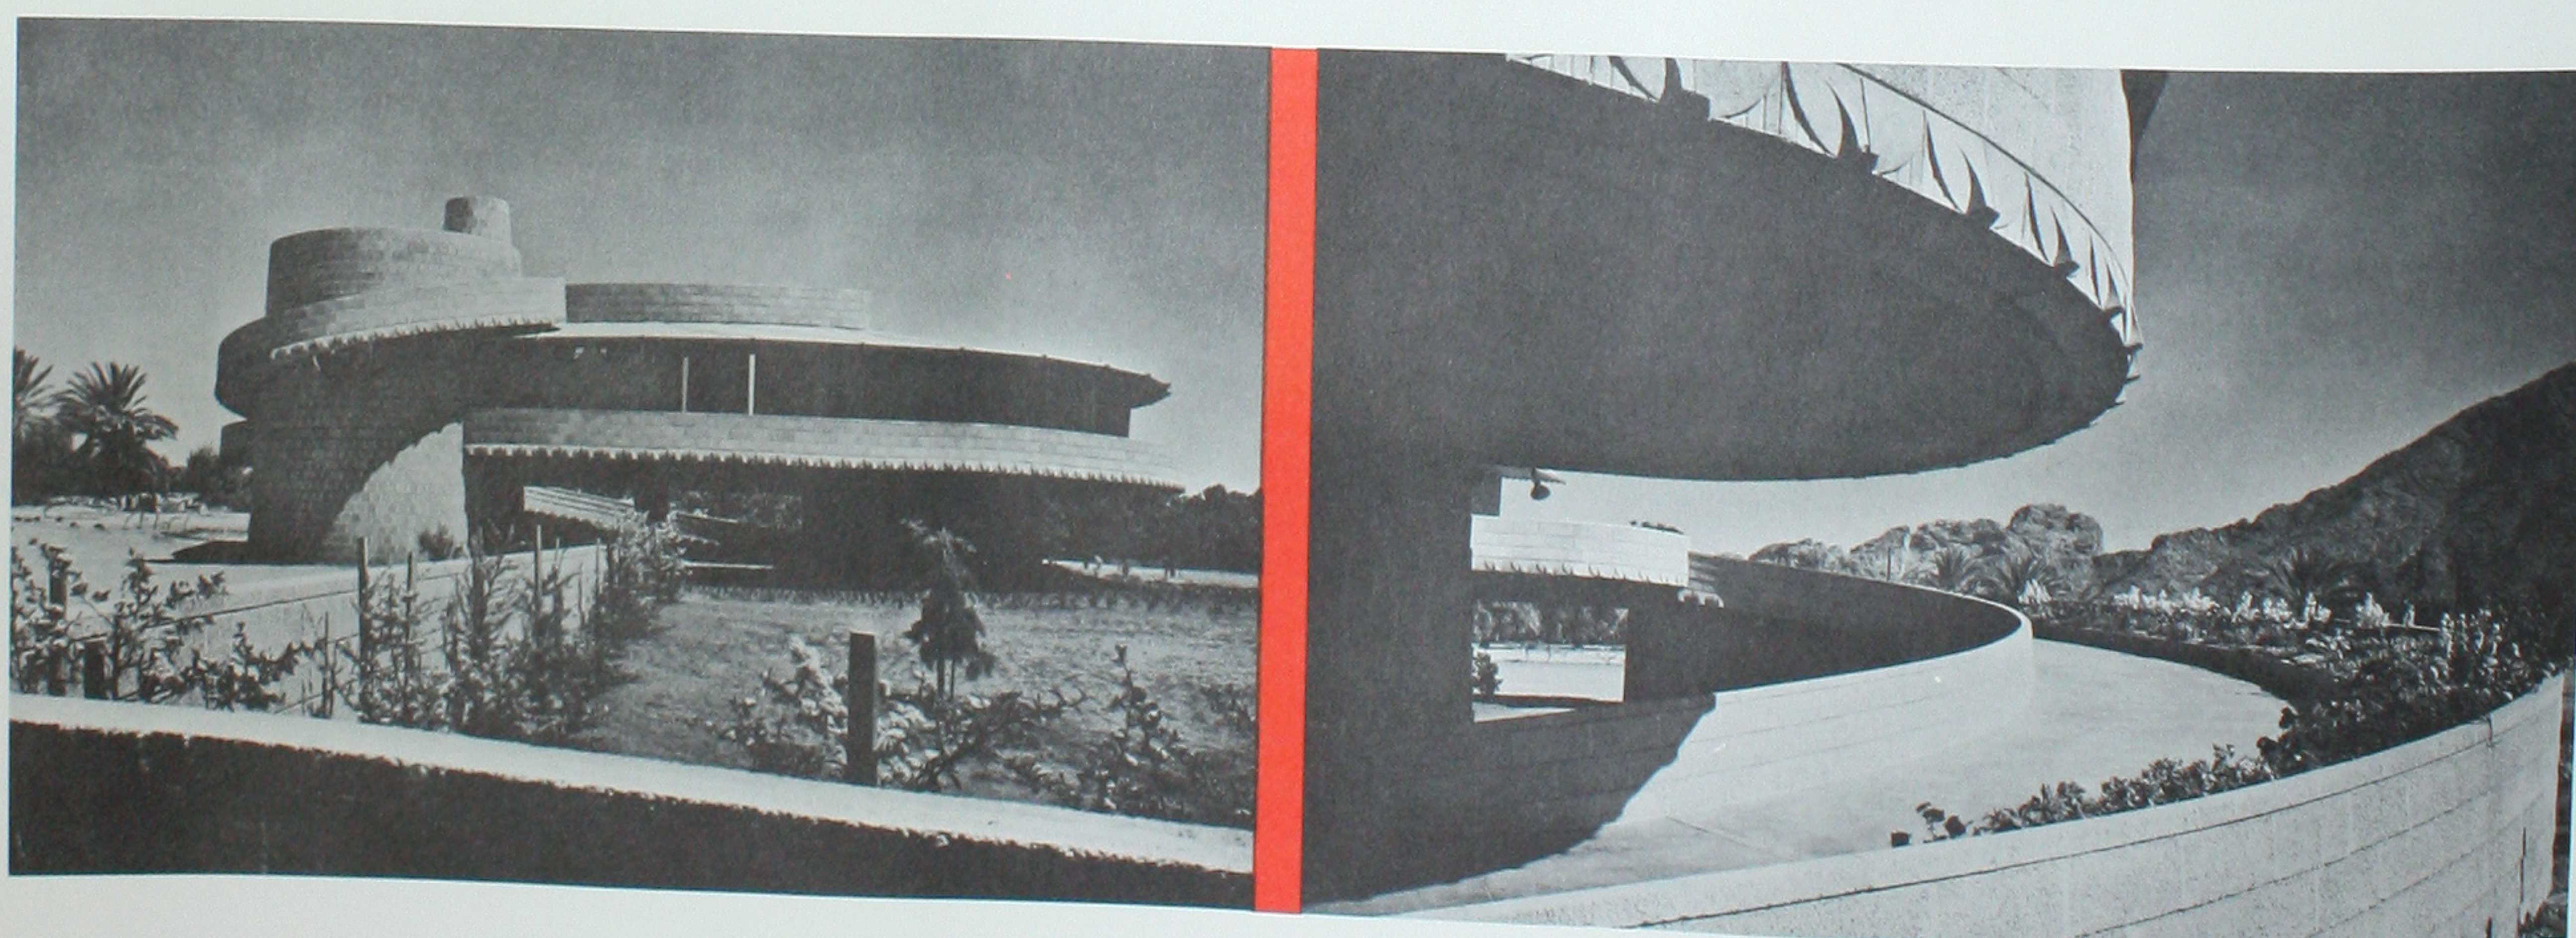

"Houses are integral to site, to environment, to the life of the inhabitants, integral with the nature of the materials."

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT

Plan of the Robert Llewellyn Wright Home, Virginia

A simple oval and terrace on a steep hillside located in a narrow valley. This home, now completed, is built of narrow red concrete blocks that resemble bricks. The structure is roofed with enameled metal. The plan was conceived to give varied views, at all points, of the beautiful site.

The David Wright Home, Phoenix, Arizona

A perfect home for this desert region, affording many advantages not possible to a home built on ground level. Citrus orchards and orange trees make the lawn and landscaping. The slowly rising ramp reveals the surrounding mountains and gives security to the occupants. The house is completely in masonry with mahogany ceilings, sash frame and doors. A small roof garden surmounts the summit of the house.

Living Room of Schumacher's "TALIESIN" Suite

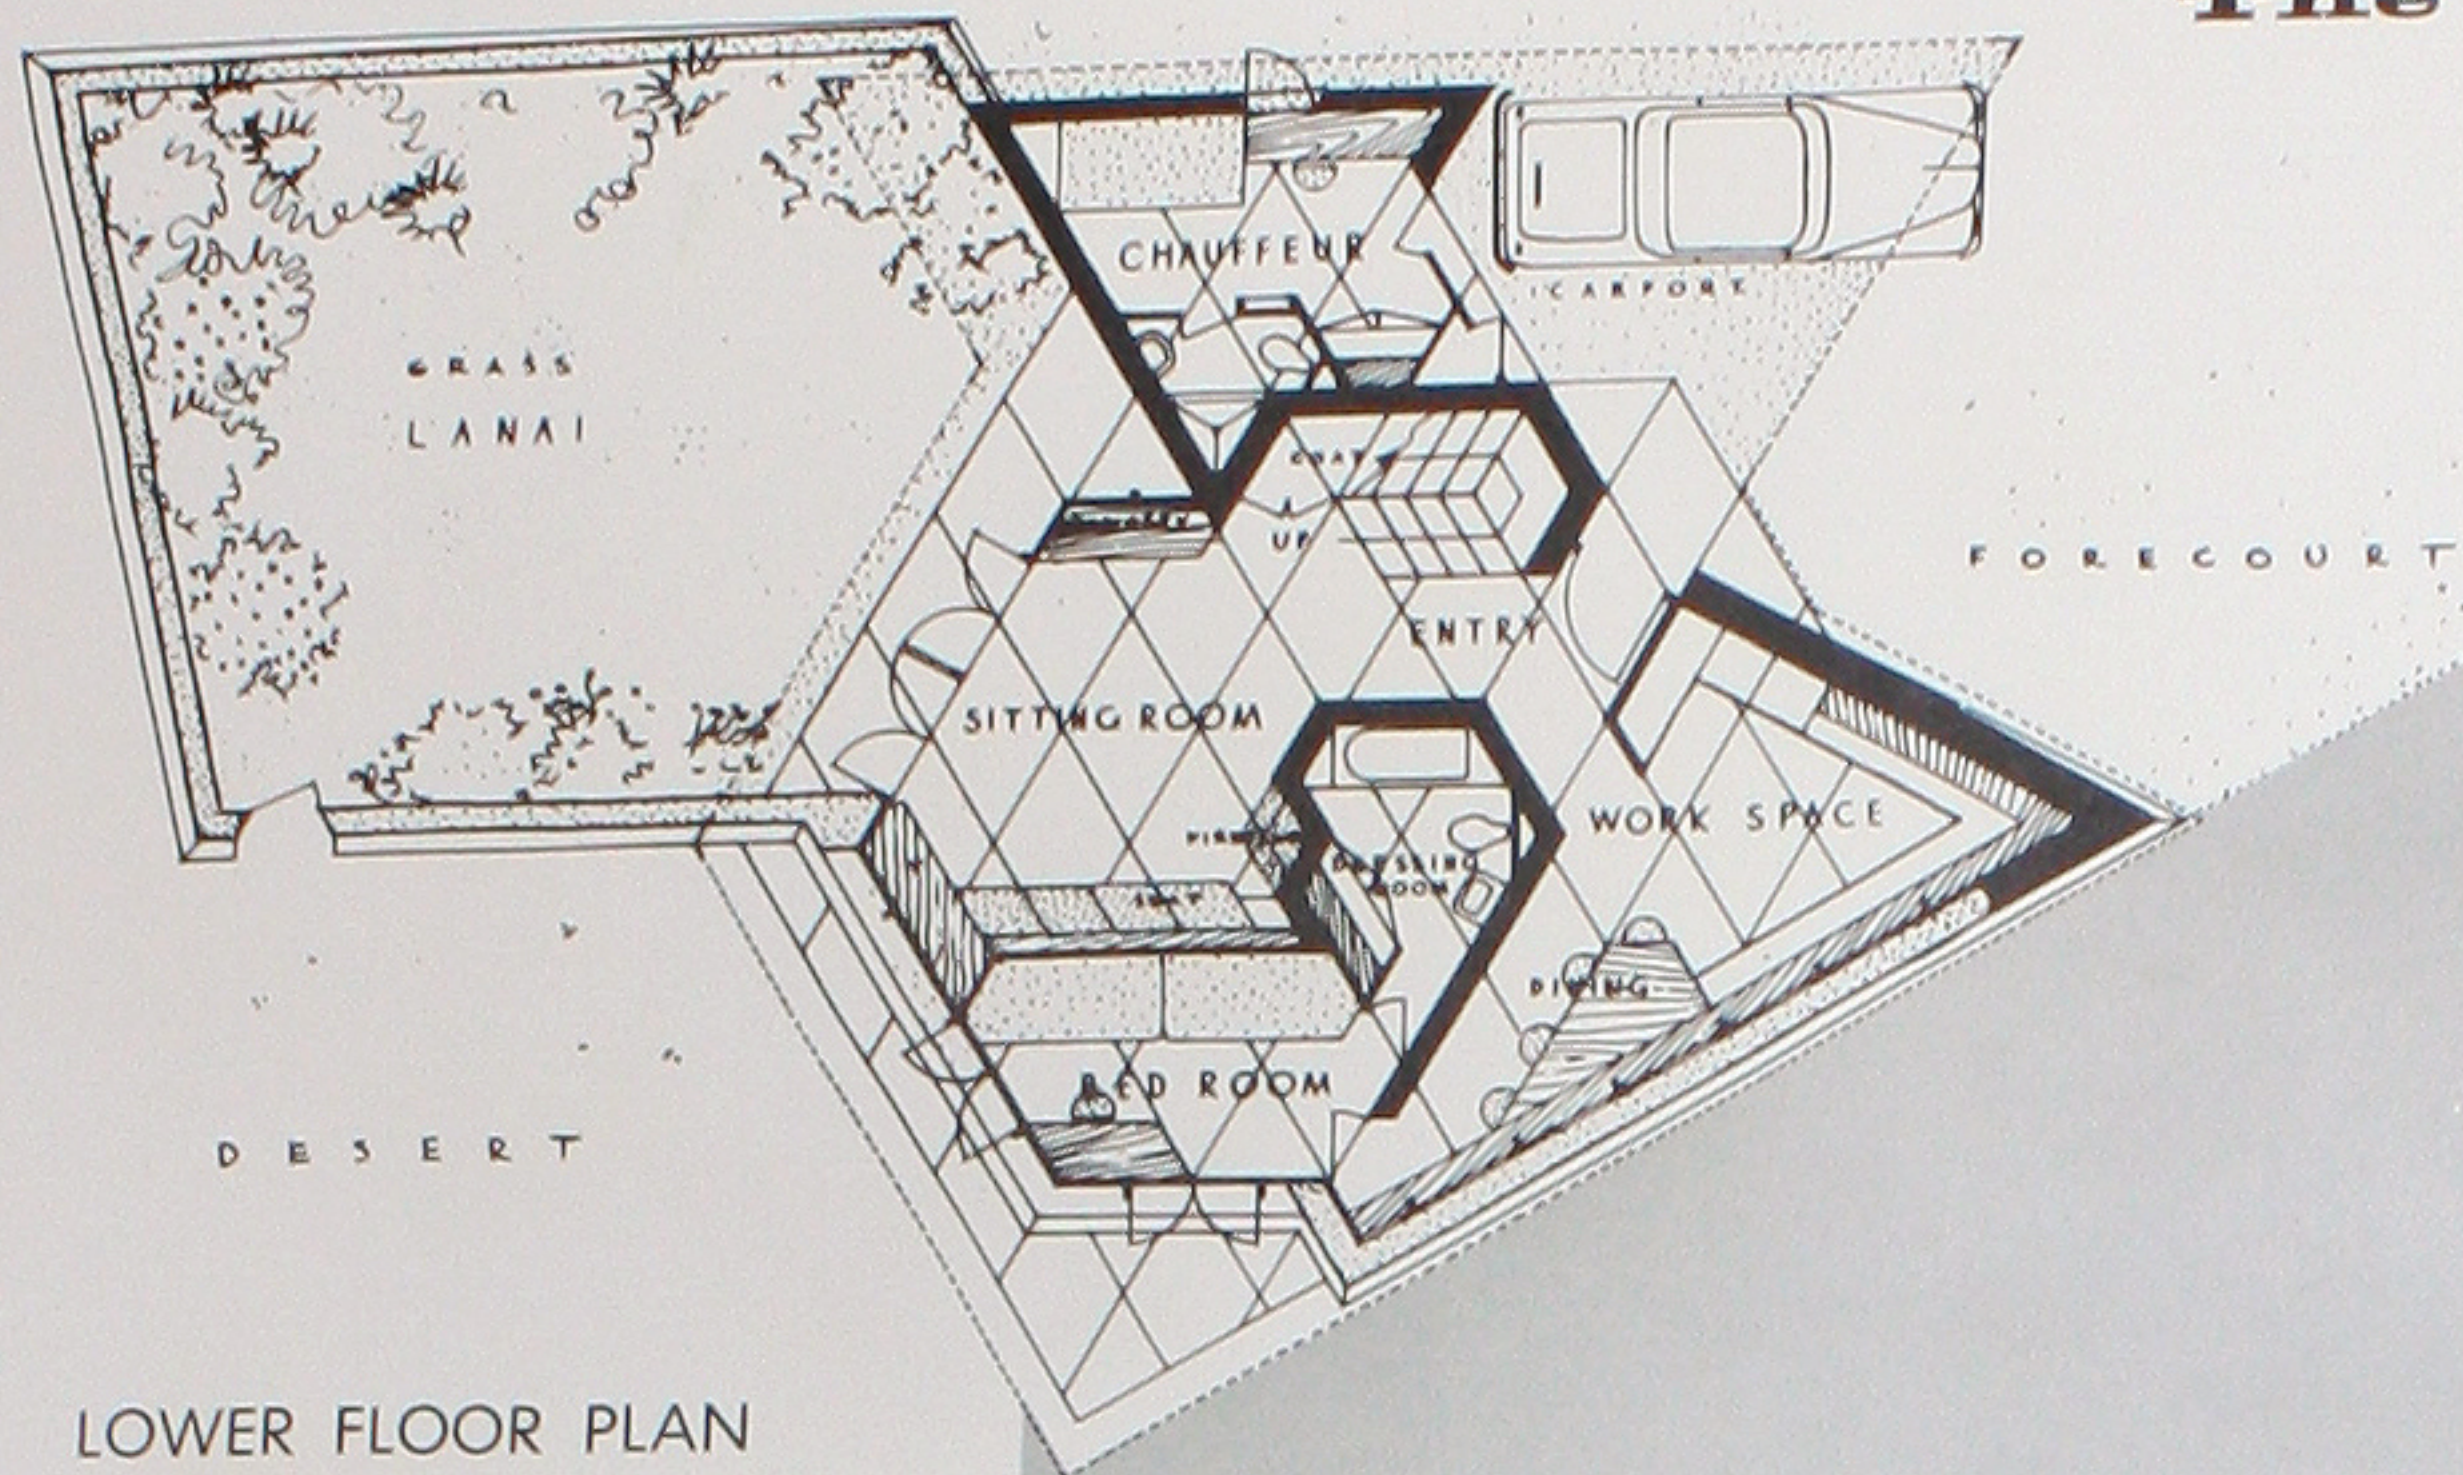

Taliesin fabrics and wallpapers are adaptable to every decor regardless of period. Their versatility is shown by their use in this more traditional setting. The attractive window wall draperies are of 50" printed linen Design No. 102.

Another view of this same living room illustrates the use of Design No. 102 as the upholstery fabric for the sofa.

LOWER FLOOR PLAN

The walls are made of rough blocks of red desert stone set in concrete and the graceful eaves of the roof lend a winglike quality to the structure. The tall windows in the sitting room give an awe inspiring view of the nearby mountains.

The Dining Room of Schumacher's "TALIESIN" Suite

This beautiful setting features sheer draperies of fabric Design No. 705 with matching wallpaper. The sharp angular motif that recurs in many of Mr. Wright's architectural forms, is apparent in this decorative design.
